FROM THE DESK OF THE PASTOR

Dear Friends in Christ,

I had a seminary classmate who used to do something at the start of each semester that became predictable. When an instructor handed out the syllabus for a course, he would start a line of questioning and negotiating with him/her. "How much will this count for in our final grade?" he'd ask. Or he might ask, "Could we read one less book because we have a lot of courses for which to prepare?" At times, the whole process became a bit wearisome; however, it did serve to force the teacher to clarify what was expected. And we all like to know what is expected. Or do we?

In the parable that we hear for today's Solemnity of Christ the King, what is expected is very clear: that God will know us by our reaction to human need. In this parable, no mention is made about how much knowledge or fame and fortune we have gained; rather, the focus in on the help that we have given. And the parable clearly outlines the help we are expected to give.

It describes simple things like giving a hungry person a meal, or a thirsty one, a drink, welcoming the stranger, cheering up the sick and visiting the prisoner. Clearly, these are things that anyone can do. It does not take great fortune nor does it require we be famous; it is simply being responsive in the measure we are able to the needs we encounter on a daily basis. This opens the way to glory for the most ordinary of us.

Secondly, the parable requires we not be motivated by getting something in return. As Jesus repeats over and over, those who toot their own horn when doing an act of charity have already received their reward. What is required is not a "You scratch my back and I'll scratch yours" action; rather, one born of a loving heart moved by compassion.

Lastly, Jesus makes clear that all help that is given is given to Him and all help that is withheld is withheld from Him. Many people down through the centuries who have found this parable blessedly true. We recently celebrated one of those, St. Martin of Tours, on November 11th. As a Roman Soldier and a catechumen (one preparing for Christian Baptism), he was entering a city on a cold winter day. A beggar stopped him and asked for alms, but Martin had no money. Seeing that the beggar was cold, Martin took off his soldier's cloak, cut it in two, and gave half to the beggar to cover himself. That night, Martin had a dream in which he saw Jesus wearing half of a Roman soldier's cloak. In the dream, one of the angels asked Jesus, "Master why are you wearing that old battered cloak? Who gave it to you?" And Jesus answered softly, "My servant Martin gave it to me."

Sincerely in Christ,

ADVENT PRAYER
(by Sister Therese Dugan, SND)

Unfortunately, I will not be able to give any Advent presentations this year, but I recommend the following free and low-cost sources of inspiration.

1. (Free!) First and foremost: The daily Mass readings for Advent. Do Lectio Divina (Sacred Reading). (See bulletin for the readings)

a) Find a quiet space and time that is about the same every day and read slowly until something strikes you about your life or prayer.

b) Re-read that word or phrase, even memorize it if you can, and meditate on what it means for you in the way you live your daily life.

c) Speak to God from your heart about it, and also listen to the inspiration God gives you about what struck you.

d) Just be content in God's presence for as long as you can be there. A loving God is within you and loves you as if you are God's only child. Be alert to God speaking throughout the day when you least expect it.

2. (Free) Computer site of Irish Jesuits:
https://www.sacredspace.ie/
Click on 3-minute Retreats (brief/deep prayer help.

3. (Free) https://IgnatianSpirituality.com
(This is a Jesuit website addressing Advent, online retreats, books, and seasonal inspiration.

4. Daily Reflections for Advent & Christmas: Waiting in Joyful Hope 2017-18. by Mary DeTurris Proust. Liturgical Press. 1-800 858-5450 or visit litpress.org. (Pocket-sized) $2 plus postage ($3). (only a limited number left)

5. 23rd Publications has a variety of Advent day by day booklets for $.99 plus tax as well as $3.00 for shipping and handling. Order online at www.23rdpublications.com or call 1(800) 321-0411.

Blessed Advent to all of you!
