St. John Paul II Cluster

August 7, 2022
19th Sunday in Ordinary Time

St. Thomas Aquinas reminds us that, "Three things are necessary for the salvation of man: to know what he ought to believe, to know what he ought to desire, and to know what he ought to do." Everyone is called to work toward their salvation, which is ultimately union with God. Those who take this call seriously must embark upon a journey inward to the deepest recesses of their soul. In the adventure and wonder of that journey, we work out the details of our union with our Beloved. We cling to what we need to believe, remain firm in what we truly desire, and are guided by what we know we have to do. Once we know that our goal is to be one with our Creator, life becomes an exciting expedition to pursue that end. We make necessary preparations, follow the map, and remain on course.

Whenever we really want something, we put our entire selves into achieving it. Being fully invested in our labor, we willingly work extra hours, devote an abundance of energy and effort, and remain vigilant for beneficial opportunities that may come our way. We certainly do not passively sit by doing nothing! Such an attitude leads to laziness and the accomplishment of little. Worse yet, some look to others to do the work for them, hoping to reap the benefits of another's efforts. Conscientiousness and diligence are the only means to success.

For the one who eagerly awaits the day when they can be fully with God, life becomes a joyous adventure indeed! Alert, ready, focused, convicted, and willing to be a servant they constantly watch and prepare themselves for meeting the Lord. Loving the journey and being in love with their Creator, their lives become joyful witnesses of love and service. They are secure in their hope, confident in their faith, and perfect in their love. Never looking for recognition or gratitude, they stand as gentle inspirations of what the Holy Spirit can do in the hearts of those who believe. Because we do not know what tomorrow will bring, we stand ready to be used as God wills and run eagerly toward Him when He comes. How much do we desire to experience the joy of salvation?

From Haiti

"I am Guerson Champagne, new pastor of the parish of Sainte Anne de l'Anse-a-foleur. It's been 6 months since I've been here. Today I feel the obligation to write to you to thank you. I will never be able to thank you enough for what you have done for the parish and for me in particular.

The sum you so generously sent me saved me a lot of hassle... Thanks to you, I was able to improve the state of the Truck, some thing in the presbytery and some assistance, which means that now with the current situation of the country everything has pleased me. I can say that I have come a long way and, without you, I don't know where I would be right now.

Thanks again for your generosity.

Affectionately,
R.P Guerson."

From the Desk of Fr. Beckman:

We don't talk enough about intimacy, both inside and outside the Church. There are many reasons for this, including our fear of intimacy and a crucial misunderstanding of how intimacy can be achieved. On the one hand, we long for intimacy, but we fear the possibility of another person rejecting us when we share our vulnerability. Or, we fear that being too intimate with someone might result in losing our independence. Then there is the misunderstanding that the only way to achieve the intimacy we crave is by sexual encounters. According to this way of thinking, single people and celibates are doomed to lives of loneliness. But intimacy cannot be reduced to sexual union only. It is something much greater and has an essentially spiritual dimension. Our need for intimacy is an energy and pulsating desire that flows within us—that outward momentum that seeks unity of soul and the connection with another that delights the heart.

We talk a lot about building our relationship with God through Jesus Christ. When we think about our relationships we also think about intimacy, or closeness with the beloved. On the Feast of the Sacred Heart of Jesus, Friday, June 24 of this year, what God offers us through his heart is this gift of intimacy with him. In the next few weeks, I would like to share a slightly adapted reflection, with a few of my own thoughts interjected, on the Sacred Heart from Fr. Billy Swan of the Diocese of Ferns in Ireland.

The theme of intimacy is central to the Bible. It is expressed by the symbol of the heart and the nuptial imagery of God marrying his people. In the Old Testament Book of the Prophet Hosea, we hear the Lord say, "I will espouse you to me forever; I will espouse you in righteousness and in justice, in love and in mercy; I will espouse you in fidelity, and you shall know the Lord" (Hosea 2: 21-22). First, the symbol of the heart is considered to be the seat of emotions and human affectivity. It can rejoice (Phil. 4:4), (John 16:22) or be burdened with sadness or worry (John 14:1). It can feel bitterness (Ps. 73:21) or be gladdened by wine (Ps. 104:15). The heart can be opened wide with love (2 Cor. 6:11), or it can be given over to hatred (Lev. 19:17). Please check out the above referenced Scripture passages for your own personal reflection.

Yet, according to the Scriptures, the heart is not only the home of our emotions but a symbol of the total self. Solomon's request for a "listening heart" to know the difference between good and evil shows how the discernment of right and wrong is not just an operation of the mind and will but of the heart (1 Kings 3:9). The prophet Jeremiah was acutely aware of the human heart's deviousness (Jer. 17:9), and Ezekiel spoke of Israel's conversion as a replacement of their hearts of stone with hearts of flesh (Ezek. 36:26). Again, the symbol of the heart is used here to signify the transformation of the total self and the total gift of self that love demands. Israel was called out by God into the desert to "speak to her heart" (Hos. 1:16) in preparation for the divine lover asking: "My child, give me your heart" (Prov. 23:26). We will continue our reflection on the intimate heart and our relationship with the Lord next week.
