From the Desk of Father Xavier

Today's readings explain how God, like a good shepherd, redeems His people and provides for them. The readings also challenge us to use our God-given authority in the family, in the Church, and in society, with fidelity and responsibility. Today, pastoral ministry includes not only the pastoral care given by those named or ordained as "pastors," but the loving service given by all Christians who follow different callings to serve and lead others.

In today's Gospel, Mark presents Jesus as the good shepherd fulfilling God's promise given through His prophet Jeremiah in the first reading. Here we see Jesus attending to the weary apostles, who have just returned, jubilant, from their first preaching mission, while at the same time expressing concern for the people who, like "sheep without a shepherd," have gathered at their landing place in the wilderness.

We need God's grace to become good shepherds. The Christian life is a continuous passage from the presence of God to the presence of people and back to God again. Prayer is essentially listening to God and talking to Him. We should allow God the opportunity to speak to us and recharge us with spiritual energy and strength by setting aside enough time for Him to speak to us and for us to speak to Him. He speaks to us powerfully when we spend some time every day reading the Bible devoutly and meditating on the message God gives us in Scripture. We receive strength from God to do our share of the shepherd's preaching and healing ministry by asking for it individually, in the family, and as a community in the parish Church, participating in the Eucharistic celebration.

The Church has the double responsibility of teaching and feeding: There can be no true Christianity without the proclamation of the Gospel. Teaching the Word of God is essential to a Christian community. Christians must also display the compassion of Jesus by meeting the social and material needs of others by our works of charity as individual Christians and as a parish community.

Bereavement Ministry

Ways to Cope with Grief

- Cry...it is not a sign of weakness. Tears release tension and are healing.
- Plan activities that are enjoyable.
- Don't become dependent on alcohol or drugs to get through the painful times, they will only mask the grief.
- Get involved in meaningful activities...work, hobbies, volunteering, etc.
- Learn about grief...understanding helps you realize that you're not "going crazy."
- Seek support from family, friends, clergy, support groups or counseling.
- Be patient and gentle with yourself.
