FROM YOUR PASTOR

Dear St. Luke Family,

As your pastor, I have been praying and discerning for months about how we can build a community here, how we can build a healthy home, how we can build a flock that is deeply in love with Christ the Good Shepherd. And the fruit of this prayer is what I have named and what you have been hopefully hearing and reading a lot about… FIRE. FIRE stands for Family Involved Religious Education. But this education, this formation program has no age limits.

It has two main components really. First is FIREnights. These are the main focus and most awesome part of the program. FIREnights are once a month. And they are focused around discipleship and growth in virtue as a whole parish family. If you are between the ages of 0-150, these nights are for you. Come as a family, come with friends, come by yourself! The night begins with a fun introduction to a certain theme or topic. Then, we will split up into breakout groups according to age, all discussing the same topic at the same time but at our own level. Then, we all come back together to share a meal and share what we learned.

FIRE takes the place of CCD, so registering for FIRE, registering for CCD, registering as an adult for faith formation are all synonymous. We'll now be using those terms interchangeably.

Now, what if you are preparing for a sacrament? What if you are preparing for first reconciliation or first communion? What if you are preparing for Confirmation? What if you are preparing to enter the Church through RCIA? Well, that is the second component to FIRE. An additional evening each month, we will have Blaze nights, for all those preparing for any sacrament — meeting in different areas but all at the same time.

Now, you may be wondering: "FIRE? I've never heard of this nonsense before. Is this even allowed by the archdiocese?" I've specifically designed this program after numerous conversations with specialists in our community and our archdiocese, and after numerous hours in prayer… a program designed specifically for us here at St. Luke. And with regard to permissions: yes, the archdiocese office of religious education is very excited about this initiative in our parish and looks forward to seeing it be a success, just as much as we do!

Now the question on everyone's mind… when?
When will FIREnights and BLAZE! nights take place? It turns out, after speaking with many parishioners and young parents especially, that the best time would be a Sunday evening. In order to meet that challenge, and after much prayer and discernment, I am excited to announce that starting Sunday, August 1, our 6pm Sunday Mass will be moved forward to 4pm every Sunday. This will allow us to then hold our monthly FIREnights and Blaze nights starting around 5pm and finishing before 7pm… allowing everyone to be home and in bed at a reasonable hour.

I also did my best to schedule these nights on evenings when the Saints have a bye weekend or an early away game, and even avoiding as many holidays as possible — because those moments together with family and friends are so important and precious too. There is so much more to this program as well, but for the sake of not overwhelming you, I'll let you read about some of the other details on your own.

I am so excited to begin this new program with you. And I hope you know that it has been created with a lot of thought, and love, and joy. And I hope you will not only pray for its success, but join us. Give it a chance. Come and be a part of this loving community, especially after almost two years of isolation and quarantine. And I ask that you also be understanding that — although this program is awesome and exciting — this is very new and so there may be some kinks to work out. But I cannot wait to see what God has in store!

To Jesus, through Mary,
in union with St. Joseph, Your Pastor Fr. Jared

FIRE vs. CCD - Why is FIRE such a better alternative?

Take a look around the pews at any given Sunday Mass, and you might be asking yourself: "Where are all the young families?" More and more, all over the country, churches are asking themselves that question.

For the last two decades, a sociologist at Notre Dame University has been asking himself that question, too, and his findings are a little heartbreaking. Dr. Christian Smith has become the leading specialist in tracking the migration of young men and women out of the Church by studying the spiritual lives of young adults. He's the author of three pretty insightful books that detail the studies he's done following the religious life of teenagers in our country. In Lost in Transition (2011) Smith makes the point that our CCD programs, for all our best efforts, have failed our young adults - the same ones that are now parents of the next generation.

Why? Because we've forgotten what it was about being CHURCH that kept us Catholic in the first place: COMMUNITY. Parents who don't feel confident in their own faith wish their children's faith was stronger, and for years, they've been hoping that CCD classrooms can provide it for them. But what they don't realize is that without engaging the questions in their OWN hearts from within a supportive Catholic community who loves them and has answers for THEM as parents, they are bound to fail. What their kids are looking for is proof that it is possible to have a life of truth, love, trust, and hope - within their own families, not classrooms. Mothers and fathers - and now grandparents - are heart-broken to hear their children's questions without having the answers themselves. And that is a tragedy.

FIRE is about reconnecting families with that sense of community, allowing parents to discover that there are others - just like them - who want to build healthy holy friendships that support their efforts in raising Catholic kids AND about giving them the ability to also connect with older Catholics who have already made the journey and have a lot of love and support to share. FIREnights allow that incredible community to reengage a family's faith in Christ and help them find the support of their Church, allowing them to be the parents they always wanted to be - and that their kids knew they could.

What follows is a segment of an interview Dr. Smith did with colleagues at Yale University. To read the entire interview (well worth the effort) visit https://reflections.yale.edu/article/seeking-light-new-generation/young-souls-transition-interview-christian-smith

In the emerging adult years, what many think about “religion” is: It’s just not something that matters to them. Religion is seen as something they might take an interest in later in life, like life insurance. They aren’t angry about it. It’s just given a presupposed dismissal... I’m not a good-old-days sociologist, but I do think former generations were religiously more engaged, more literate. The digital, social media revolution has created a new world. It affects what young people’s eyes are focused on – the world of screens – and what matters to them and how they form community. Technology has consequences for epistemology, the nature of authority and trust...

Young people – teens – are under incredible pressure to perform. Intense expectations are placed on them. As a colleague of mine has suggested, social media appears to be all about social performance, creating a personality that isn’t real, and teens are experiencing a deep unhappiness about this. I think churches are in a position to create a social space where people can be accepted for who they are and not be expected to perform. I’ve seen some congregations that do this.

If there’s one thing I know about younger people, whether they are 13 or 28, nearly every last one of them thinks of Christianity as a set of rules and regulations, do’s and dont's. They aren’t necessarily fighting against that. That’s simply what they think Christianity is – a set of moralisms. The church is a place of moralistic requirements.

And that’s very understandable. Parents want their kids to turn out okay, and they rely on the church for moral guidance so they learn to behave. Parents are trying to cope with a world where lots of things can go wrong. There are lots of threats. But I think it can lead to a form of idolatry to treat the church this way. I feel for pastors. They are faced with this expectation from parents.

I don’t think techniques and practices are going to change the situation. Churches need to attack moralism wherever they see it and show what the Gospel really is. Congregations need to have a conversation: What is Christianity? What is God for us? What is the power of the Gospel?

Religion might be irrelevant to emerging adults as a group, but that does not mean they are hostile to it. Many are intrigued. They want to talk about it. Many who were raised non-religious feel culturally deprived of this big part of life. Many churches seem to think that non-religious young people are all atheistic like Richard Dawkins, but they aren’t. They’re aware that they don’t know much about religious tradition. Many want a conversation. If churches don’t make an effort to engage, it won’t happen.

WELCOME BACK TO THE HOLY MASS...

St. Luke family,

With great reverence and joy, I announce to you that the Mass obligation will be restored on June 6th, 2021, which is only fitting since this will be the Feast of the Body and Blood of Christ, better known as Corpus Christi. On that day, we will lovingly return to the invitation that God has given us to set aside Sundays to receive the unequalled gift of the Holy Eucharist - together around the altar in peace as a parish family.

We will keep in prayer those for whom returning to the Sunday Mass in person is impossible, and be assured of our love and remembrance of you. Those who are homebound or in nursing homes or hospitals are welcome to call our parish office to arrange for visits. As you can imagine, we will need more Extraordinary Ministers of Holy Communion, trained and ready, to serve these brothers and sisters in Christ. If the Lord is calling you to serve in this capacity, I wholeheartedly ask you to call our Parishioner Liaison to begin the process.

The mask mandate has been lifted for our campus, making your decision to wear a mask optional! While we learn to adjust to the newness of the situation, we all have reasons for masking or unmasking. Wherever we stand on the issue, may we not use it as a reason for division but, rather, renew our love for the Lord and for each other by choosing gentleness, kindness, and charity.

May the Lord continue to bless us as we enter His presence this week with unveiled faces and grateful hearts.

Fr. J

FROM YOUR PAROCHIAL VICAR

Last Saturday, we had a picnic here at St. Luke Church for our altar servers and their families. I want to thank Father David and Father Jared for letting us have this picnic, and I also want to thank our Knights of Columbus for providing the food. I specifically want to thank those Knights who joined me in cooking and serving the food: Rob Wedge, John Pericone, Gary Riera, Randy Authement, and Randy Gonzales dished up plenty of burgers, hot dogs and chili, red beans and rice, popsicles, lemonade, chips, donuts, and watermelon. I also would like to thank Margie Mayeux for her delicious brownies. Thanks to Kay Guard for promoting this picnic to the families of the altar servers, and thanks to the parents who brought their kids to the picnic in spite of the rain, so they could enjoy a well-deserved reward for their service. It was great to see how much the kids enjoyed the water slide, and Father David even went down the water slide a few times! When the kids and their parents told me they were so thankful that we had this picnic for them, it made me feel joyful and blessed that I have the health to do this for them. I am so blessed to be able to work with the altar servers here at St. Luke.

Thank you,

David Vedros

P.S. A huge thank you to David Vedros for providing the epic water slide and for planning this picnic and making it happen!

Fr. David
