Mother's Remembrance

We sat in the dark;
the dampness penetrated
the very clothes we wore.
We sat remembering:
what He had said;
how He had said it;
and the way He had laughed so easily.
We, too, wanted to laugh remembering. I could almost smell the scent of cedar that clung to His clothes.
How peculiar not that He should die,
but that He should die upon the wood
that had welcomed Him,
when He was but a child.
...
And now, it's the third night,
after we laid Him in the tomb.
We wait, not knowing, for what we wait.
We wait, because He'd asked us to wait.
Our people are used to waiting. We waited for freedom from slavery for four hundred years
we can wait a few more days.
Though He's my son, my boy,
the delight of my soul,
I did not always understand Him.
He gave life by His very presence. Perhaps,
that's why He took the bread that night into His hands as we sat at table. You remember
He gave it to us: Take and eat.
This is my body.
Strange words! What did they mean?
I wondered even as He said them.
He was always wanting to give something -- Take!
We took the bread,
and ate -- not knowing what He wanted to give.

We ate the bread and as we ate without the familiar laughter and old jokes; it was as if time itself stood still and waited.
Waited for what we did not know.
But we held our breath
and waited for a word from Him, a sign,
a gesture, we'd recognize.
He broke the bread and said,
Do this in memory of me.

Is it only three days ago
we sat together around this table?
How we laughed and sang the old songs! And now. . .

Peace! Peace be with you!
Do not be afraid! It is I.
Why are you troubled?
You have found favor with God.
In that brief moment between shadow
and light I began to understand!
Be at Peace!
Overcome with joy I rose to hug
Him whom my heart held dear.
Words I'd said a thousand times before came to my lips. Come, sit.
Let us eat. You must be hungry.
At table we sat: He and I with you.
He took the bread,
blessed it and broke it.
My eyes were opened!
Now, I knew what I had never understood:
He's giving us Himself!
Whether in words or in bread, the gift
was still the same:
Himself poured out
in stories, songs or simple laughter!
And, now, for me
the night is, indeed, over;
the Dawn has come with the heavy fragrance of early spring orange blossoms mixed with the scent of fresh cut cedar.

Sunday of Divine Mercy

Next Sunday, April 11

Jesus left all the details concerning "Divine Mercy" in a diary that He commanded Saint Faustina Kowalska to write in the1930's. To get this great promise, one has to go to Confession before or after Easter and then receive Holy Communion on that Feast of Divine Mercy, which has now been called Divine Mercy Sunday throughout the whole Church. Remember these words of Jesus, "I desire that the Feast of Mercy be a refuge and shelter for all souls, and especially poor sinners. On that day, the very depths of my tender mercy are open. Wake up people of the World, and repent of your sins, and bask in the glory of the Risen Lord Jesus!"

This year the Feast is next Sunday, April 11. It was Pope St. John Paul II who canonized St. Faustina and fulfilled the wish of the Lord: that the Sunday after Easter would be celebrated as Divine Mercy Sunday.

Please make time to come for prayer and to venerate the Divine Mercy image:

12:00 PM	Solemn Mass for Divine Mercy Sunday
1:00 - 3:00 PM	Veneration of the Divine Mercy Image; Blessing with the First Class Relic of St. Faustina Kawalska; Music and reflections by Katy Feeney, singer and harpist; Rosary; Silent prayers; and the Chaplet of Divine Mercy
3:00 PM	Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament & Reposition

Unannounced Masses from March

Please pray for…

Ann Marie Riccio, Edward Ackerman,
Filomena Blasi, Richard Tome, Janet Perrone, Josepha Llamoca, Sally Procino,
Kenneth Allen Habel, Martin Carroll,
Daniela Gimenez DeMartinez

Next Weekend's Readings

Sunday of Divine Mercy, Year B

Reading I: Acts 4: 32-35

We read a description of the "golden age" of the early Church in Apostolic times. It is an ideal community life, in which members generously surrendered their goods and property based on their needs.

Reading II: I John 5: 1-6

This "letter" is really an exhortation to its readers to so live that their faith overcomes "the world." God's Son came to us "in water and blood."

The Gospel: John 20: 19-31

After the report of St. Thomas' initial doubt and its resolution, we learn the purpose of the Gospel: having faith in Jesus as Messiah and Son of God, who is the source of eternal life.

274. "What are the five steps to successfully examine your conscience?"

The general examination is intended to prepare ourselves for confession. It is the one to which we are most accustomed and which we sometimes do at the last minute as we wait in line to go to confession. What we tend to think of at the last moment are the mortal sins, which we may have committed only once, while the lesser sins, which we commit so often and become indifferent to, remain in the shadows.

The Guide to the Examination of Conscience published by the Sacred Apostolic Penitentiary emphasizes that "a good confession is always the consequence of a sincere and thorough examination of conscience, which, ultimately, is the only thing that can lead the believer to feel sorrow over the sins committed and to want to be freed from them as soon as possible through the encounter with divine mercy in the sacrament.

How do we specifically do it? St. Ignatius explains the five steps:

1. Give thanks to God for His blessings.
2. Ask Him for the grace of light to know your sins and to reject them.
3. Review your thoughts, words, and actions for what may have been in opposition to the divine commandments.
4. Ask for forgiveness for your mistakes.
5. Then make a commitment to change.

In regard to the examination of one's sins, consulting certain guidelines can be of great help: the Decalogue, as suggested to us by the Catechism of the Catholic Church, the Beatitudes, the Our Father, the seven deadly sins, or a reading of our duties to God, our neighbor. and ourselves. Using them alternately works well, as is taking advice from a priest to help us adapt them to our personal profile. The Les Petits Ostensoirs website offers customized examinations of conscience for children according to their age, for parents, and for spouses.

Emmaus Ministry for Grieving Parents

Live Virtual 5-Hour Retreats
10:15 AM to 3:30 PM

Life for our children has changed, not ended. They are still very much alive and well and at work in our lives right now, but we need to be reminded of that fact often. This is the focus of the Emmaus Ministry for Grieving Parents, which serves the spiritual needs of parents whose children of any age have died by any cause, no matter how long ago. Please consider joining us at one of our 2021 Emmaus Ministry 5-Hour Virtual Spiritual Retreats.

These retreats offer Virtual Prayer Services, Reflections of Spiritual Leaders familiar with parental grief, a Parent Witness who will share where he/she is currently in their own spiritual journey after the death of their child, interactions with other grieving parents through small groups of mothers and fathers, as well as larger group interactions and one-on-one opportunities, if you'd like.

Participation in all of our sessions is totally optional. You will not be required to introduce yourself, tell your story, or share anything at all. Many parents participate by listening. That being said, you will have ample opportunity to interact with other parents, if you wish.
