SCRIPTURE INSIGHTS

Today's readings invite us to reflect on our need for redemption and to open our eyes to the new things that God wants to do for us.

The First Reading is addressed to the exiles in Babylon. They are told that God is about to destroy the Babylonian Empire. What a marvelous thing! God will buy back the exiles in the same way that he destroyed the pharaoh's army at the Red Sea. Moreover, this new Exodus will be so great that they will forget the first one. God makes all things new.

In the Second Reading, Paul tells the community at Philippi about his former life as a persecutor of the followers of Jesus and about how everything he once had is now considered rubbish in light of knowing Christ and his Resurrection. Here, "knowing" means experiencing Christ in faith.

In the Gospel's powerful story about Jesus and a woman charged with adultery, the scribes and Pharisees force Jesus to be a judge so that they might entrap him. But what about the woman? She is shamed at least twice. The men who brought charges against her would have witnessed the act, and now she is made to stand before these men while she awaits judgment. It is likely that she had been raped because most women in the ancient world were not given freedom to voluntarily engage in sexual relations. Jesus saves her by saying that the one who has no sin cast the first stone.

- ◆ From the First Reading, what can you conclude about God's relationship to humanity?
- ◆ What would you have wanted to say to the woman accused of adultery?
- ◆ What phrases in Paul's testimony of faith resonate with you?
