From My Heart to Yours

My meditation this morning, Tuesday, March 9, based on my spiritual reading from “The Living Reminder: Service and Prayer in memory of Jesus Christ” by Henri J. M. Nouwen (continued from last weekend.)

The Healing: “How are we healed of our wounding memories? We are healed first of all by letting them be available, by leading them out of the corner of forgetfulness and by remembering them as part of our life stories. What is forgotten is unavailable, and what is unavailable cannot be healed. Max Scheler shows how memory liberates us from determining power of forgotten painful events. “Remembering,” he says, “is the beginning of freedom from covert power of the remembered thing or occurrence.” Our first task is to offer each other the space in which the wounding memories of the past can be reached and brought back into the light without fear. When the soil is not plowed the rain cannot reach the seeds; when the leaves are not raked away the sun cannot nurture the hidden plants. So also, when our memories remain covered with fear, anxiety, or suspicion the word of God cannot bear fruit.

We have inherited a story which needs to be told in such a way that the many painful wounds about which we hear day after day can be liberated from their isolation and be revealed as part of God’s relationship with us. Healing means revealing that our human wounds are most intimately connected with the suffering of God himself. To be a living memory of Jesus Christ, therefore, means to reveal the connections between our small sufferings and the great story of God’s suffering in Jesus Christ, between our small life and the great life of God with us. By lifting our painful forgotten memories out of the egocentric, individualistic, private space, Jesus Christ heals our pains. Jesus connects them with the pain of all humanity, a pain he took upon himself and transformed. To heal, then, does not primarily mean to take pains away but to reveal that our pains are part of a greater pain, that our sorrows are part of a greater sorrow that our experience is part of the great experience of him who said, “But was it not ordained that the Christ should suffer and so enter into the glory of God?” (cf. Luke 24:26) The above insights and experiences heal precisely because they restore the broken connection between the world and God and create a new unity in which memories that formerly seemed only destructive are now reclaimed as part of the redemptive event.”

TEEN LIFE MASS AND LENTEN REFLECTION: This Sunday, March 14, we are resuming the Teen Life activities with a Mass at 6 pm at our church. Fr. Tom Collins will preside over the Mass and preach. There will be opportunity for teenagers to go to Confession at 5.30pm before the Mass. The program will be run in compliance with all Covid-19 protocols. All teens and their parents are welcome to attend this event.

SAINT PATRICK’S DAY: As we celebrate the feast of St. Patrick on March 17, I wish you all a very Happy St. Patrick’s Day! We will have special coffee and individually wrapped cookies after 10.30am Mass on Sunday, March 21 outside the church as part of the Stay Connected to the Vine initiative.

YEAR OF SAINT JOSEPH: Year 2021 is dedicated to the special remembrance and consecration to St. Joseph. On March 19, we celebrate his feast which is considered the day of his death. I wish you the special blessings of St. Joseph and will especially remember all fathers and our families during the Mass on March 19.

SPEAKER SERIES: Please remember to mark your calendars for Friday, March 26 at 7:30pm to attend in person or virtually the ‘Speaker Series’ about Restoration of Hope and New Beginnings organized by the ‘Stay Connected to the Vine’ initiative. Fr. Tom Collins will be our first speaker. That day, March 26, our Stations of the Cross will be moved to 6pm.

LENTEN FIAT: Please bring your food and other donations to the classroom in Wallace Hall. If you are donating money, please drop off or mail your check to the parish office or use WeShare. Thank you!

Have a blessed Fourth Week of Lent!

Fr. Thadeus, your Pastor.
