From the Pastor

John's vision of seven trumpets presents an escalating tension, with crises and calamities coming from the four horsemen, martyrdom, and cosmic challenges. Just before the seventh and last trumpet blows, John gives us an interlude between Revelation 6 and 8 that feels like a catharsis or a release of the building tension. It tells of 144,000 being sealed for God out of the twelve tribes as well as a great multitude, in white robes, from every nation worshiping and praising. In many cultures, white is the color of purity. John assumes the same in his vision of the faithful who have survived the ordeal. Like the Lamb and because of the Lamb, they have been washed in blood; the Lamb's blood also works ironically to wash and purify this great multitude.

Using the metaphor of clean hands and pure hearts, Psalm 24 declares that God will bless and vindicate those who stay away from falsehood. In the Beatitudes that begin the Sermon on the Mount, experiences often deemed to be undesirable (such as mourning, persecution, and being falsely accused) turn out to be marks of blessing. In addition to having a place in God's Kingdom, for example, these individuals will "see God".

An Appeal for Support

Our Parish continues to face financial difficulties brought about by the coronavirus pandemic. We have experienced a significant decline in contributions, as well as the loss of almost all fundraising income due to the cancellation of our various fundraising events. It is at times challenging to pay our operating expenses despite our efforts to reduce those expenses wherever possible.

If you are able, please continue to support our Church. You may drop off your Offertory envelopes in the box in the middle aisle of the Church, by bringing your envelopes to the Rectory, or by contributing on our website either through WeShare or by making a donation using your credit or debit card.
