From the Pastor

On this Trinity Sunday, we read Matthew's "great commission" that narrates with breathtaking beauty and brevity the disciples' encounter with the risen Christ on a mountain in Galilee. So much happens in these five verses—the most beautiful of which is the expression of human hope and frailty in the reality that "they worshiped, but they doubted." How could they not? They had tried so hard, and had loved, lost, and experienced so much, as we do every day.

This encounter affirms that it is acceptable for faith to seek understanding. Such seeking does not deter the risen Christ whatsoever. He nonetheless declares his power and gives the disciples their mission to go, make, baptize, and teach. We are the imperfect disciples of Christ, who are doing the best that we can.

The remainder of the Good News in this proclamation is that "all nations" can now be in covenant relationship with God as a parent, through the gift of the life, death, and resurrection of the Son, and now actualized by the Holy Spirit in our lives. Matthew's great commission seeds the development of the doctrine of the Trinity. More individually, it calls each of us to intimate participation in this relationship that continues to create the world in which we live. The psalmist proclaims that God is just and right, and Paul declares that we are joint heirs in the Trinitarian relationship. The Trinity is our foundation of support and our summons to active living.
