From the Pastor

John narrates the conclusion of Jesus' Bread of Life discourse, which he delivers during Passover. The festival celebrates God's power and presence among the Israelites during the Exodus and Sinai covenant. Covenantal symbolism has, thus, permeated Jesus' teaching as he challenges his audience to recognize God acting in him now as God has always done.

When the crowd grumbles about Jesus' origin and his ability to speak of it, he responds by further claiming his heavenly origin: "He then undertakes a new tactic by speaking about eating the bread he embodies, leading to a eucharistic application of all that was taught so far. Jesus claims his flesh is the living bread, the perfection of God's gift of manna in the wilderness. Using ceremonial imagery of eating and drinking the Eucharistic meal—and offering himself as that meal—Jesus challenges both crowds and disciples to be open to the ongoing revelation of God in him and eternal relationship with him.

Such talk of eating Jesus' flesh generates horrified responses. Jesus presses even further: he establishes the Son of Man, sent from the Father whose flesh and blood sustains life, as the one in whom they abide forever. Jesus concludes the discourse in a synagogue in Capernaum by symbolically pointing to the Eucharist as their true encounter with the broken Body and the spilt Blood of Jesus. Here they are called to believe in the revelation of God through Jesus, leading to eternal life.

Support During the Summer

We ask you to be faithful to your support of our Church during the summer. Many parishioners do not attend weekly Mass during vacation time and we often experience a decrease in contributions. Our operational bills and expenses do not take a vacation and we need your support during the summer and throughout the year. May the Lord bless you for your support of our Church.

Discussion Group

Any man or woman interested in learning more about the Scriptures and applying the word of God to your daily life is invited to come on Saturday mornings at 10:30 to the Rectory.
