Deacon Jose Moronta

We continue our reflection on the Second Reading

In the Second Reading of the past two Sundays we looked at what Paul describes as three ages: Adam to Moses which is the natural period represented by the fallen, unhappy family; Moses to Christ which is the legal period in which one nation is the example; and from Christ onward which is the period of worldwide blessing where all nations are blessed and freed from the Law through the grace of Christ.

The ancient rabbis often divided their six thousand years of man's history into these same periods with the understanding that in the last two thousand years the Messiah would give a new law or reinterpret the old one. Paul, who had received a strong religious formation before his conversion has recast this period in terms of Jesus the Christ. Chapter 7, which we skip over in our Sunday readings this cycle, contains a description of the doctrine of concupiscence, our tendency to sin as the result of original sin. In today's reading Paul tells us that Christian life is to be lived in the Spirit and is destined for glory because Christian life is empowered by the Spirit. «...But you are not in the flesh; on the contrary, you are in the spirit, if only the Spirit of God dwells in you...»

The expression "if only" might be translated as "if, in reality." The Spirit, the new principle of Christian vitality, is derived from God, the same source as all other manifestations of salvation. The baptized Christian is not only "in the Spirit," but the Spirit is now said to dwell in them.

Today's passage closes with this direct sentence,

«...Consequently, brothers, we are not debtors to the flesh, to live according to the flesh. For if you live according to the flesh, you will die, but if by the spirit you put to death the deeds of the body, you will live...»

"Attachment to Christ" is not a mere external identification with the cause of Christ, or a grateful recognition of what He did for humanity. It happens only by the indwelling of the Spirit. The Christian who belongs to Christ is the one empowered to "live for God" through the life-giving influence of His Spirit. A few Sundays ago we reflected about the promise of the Holy Spirit made by Jesus Christ to his apostles in the Last Supper and we had also recently the celebration of the Most Holy Trinity. The mention of "Spirit of God" and "Spirit of Christ" in reference to the same Holy Spirit shows that the Spirit proceeds from the Father and the Son, as we proclaim every Sunday in the Creed.

Now, the gospel

Last week we heard the final instructions which Jesus gave His newly commissioned Apostles before sending them out. Jesus has traveled through Galilee but there has not been a national conversion. Instead, despite the miracles He has performed, He has largely been ignored and rejected. We hear now him saying,

«...Come to me, all you who labor and are burdened, and I will give you rest...»

Christ refers to those of us who are overwhelmed and fatigued because: * prices have risen and our income does not allow us to acquire what is necessary; * work is scarce, or there is the possibility of losing the job we have; * our business has collapsed; * debts have gone up; * health or mood has gone down; * the son or daughter is in trouble, etc. Does Christ mean that he is going to do us the little miracle that prices go down, wages go up, our illnesses are cured, and our problems are solved?

Or is he going to give us amid all these problems the necessary peace to not live in anguish, which comes from knowing that God is our Father and that he knows what we need better than we do? We do not know. All we know is that Christ is not joking when he says, "Come to me and I will give you relief." He will know how.

Thanks for Reading! Want to read more?

a week ahead.*
