Why We Should be Concerned about French President Emmanuel Macron

by Fr. Shenan J. Boquet, President, Human Life International (www.hli.org 10/29/18)

Throughout his papacy Pope Francis has repeatedly denounced “ideological colonization.” In brief, ideological colonization can be defined as the arrogant imposition of foreign values and practices by wealthy countries on less developed nations. This is often accomplished through financial coercion, by offering monetary aid on the condition that the recipient country agrees to adopt new laws or policies that embody so-called “liberal” Western values.

“Somewhat paradoxically,” said the pope earlier this year, “there is a risk that, in the very name of human rights, we will see the rise of modern forms of ideological colonization by the stronger and the wealthier, to the detriment of the poorer and the most vulnerable.” The pope highlighted contemporary attacks on human rights, especially abortion. “I think primarily of innocent children discarded even before they are born,” he said, “unwanted at times simply because they are ill or malformed, or as a result of the selfishness of adults.”

On another occasion the pope was asked to provide an example of ideological colonization. In response, he described a case where a minister in charge of education was told she could have funding to build schools if those schools taught “gender theory.” “This is ideological colonization,” he said. “It colonizes the people with an idea that wants to change a mentality or a structure.”

French President’s Egregious Remarks

Ideological colonization is endemic within Western governmental and charitable aid programs: money and supplies often come with “small print” that requires or pressures poorer countries to promote contraception, or liberalize their abortion laws, or promote hedonistic sexual values. Sadly, however, most Westerners are completely oblivious to the ways their governments are strong-arming developing countries into accepting practices or beliefs that completely contradict their cultural values.

Recent remarks by Emmanuel Macron, the French President, however, are waking some people up to the paternalistic, condescending elitism that characterizes the attitude of many Western leaders, in particular towards African nations. Speaking in late September at an event hosted by the Gates Foundation, Macron denounced the high fertility rate amongst African women. Macron suggested that African women’s fertility is not “chosen fertility.” “I always say,” he added, “present me the woman who decided, being perfectly educated, to have seven, eight or nine children.” Macron’s suggestion that educated women would never choose to have seven or more children hit a nerve. Many mothers of large families responded en masse, taking to Twitter where they launched a new hashtag – #postcardsforMacron. Using this hashtag, they posted photos of their families and details about their educational achievements.

The woman who kick-started the online campaign is Catherine Pakulak an assistant professor at The Busch School of Business and Economics and a faculty fellow at the Institute for Human Ecology at The Catholic University of America. Pakulak obtained both her Master’s degree and PhD from Harvard University. She also has eight children. “This is about ... debunking the notion that high-fertility is a consequence of ignorance,” she tweeted. Ellen, a mother of nine children with a degree in Communication Arts, wrote, “M. Macron, big family = big love. Love never fails.”

The War on African Fertility

Macron’s incredulity that any woman would choose to have a large family demonstrates his incapacity to understand a crucial truth about African culture – namely, that many African women, educated or otherwise, actually want to have many children. African culture is, by and large, far more pro-family, and pro-fertility than that of wealthy Western countries like France – which is dying for lack of children.

One of the most eloquent African voices making precisely this point is pro-life activist Obianuju (Uju for short) Ekeocha. In her book, Target Africa: Ideological Neo-Colonialism in the Twenty-First Century, Uju traced how so much of Western aid comes with strings attached – most of it aimed at curbing African reproduction. “These solutions,” she writes, “rely heavily on a single-minded strategy that entails removing or drastically reducing the source of the population growth in Africa—female fertility. Thus, Western nations, organizations, and foundations wage war against the bodies of African women.” “How does practically sterilizing the poorest women in the world give them control over famine, draught, disease, and poverty?” Uju adds.

Contraception – and abortion-pushing NGOs and governments often tout statistics showing an enormous “unmet need” for contraception in Africa – thereby justifying the billions of dollars they spend on flooding these countries with contraceptives. But as pro-life activists like Uju have pointed out, in many cases women classified as having an “unmet need” actually do have access to contraception but have consciously rejected using it.

The West – Exporting Spiritual Emptiness

Macron’s narrow-minded remarks have only served to draw attention to the spiritual vacuity of the contemporary West, and the bewildering lack of imagination that infects the Western ruling class, who simply cannot conceive that anyone might value something other than what they value.

Africa is not dying, as Europe is. And this is precisely because Africans value life and the family. As Uju writes: “The most precious gift that Africans can give to the world right now is our inherent culture of life. Most Africans understand, by faith and tradition, the inestimable value of human life, the beauty of womanhood, the grace of motherhood, the blessing of married life, and the gift of children.”

Rather than trying to educate Africans on how to have fewer children, perhaps this is an area where we should be letting Africans educate us.

Christmas Gift Giving Tree 2018

This year Our Lady of Mount Carmel is again sponsoring a "Gift Giving Tree" to help needy families from Bain and Brass Schools. A Christmas tree with tags on it will be located in the entry way of the church. Please take tag(s) the weekends of Nov. 17/18 and Nov. 24/25 and buy a gift appropriate for the tag. Return the gift back to the church by no later than 12 noon Sunday Dec. 9. Attach the tag to the wrapped gift, so we'll know how to direct the gift. We will take the gifts to the schools the week of Dec. 17; the school faculty then delivers the gifts to the homes of the families. Please help brighten Christmas for these needy families.

Money donations would also be appreciated. Money gifts are used for food vouchers that are evenly divided amongst the families. Put money donations in an envelope marked "Gift Giving Tree" in the collection basket. If you take a tag from the tree, return a gift by the Dec. 9 noon Mass.

All tags must be accounted for. THANK YOU !!!!!

Mark your calendars for a Special Advent Presentation on Saturday, December 8th at 2:30pm in St. Casimir Hall, St. Elizabeth's Parish!

The St. James/St. Elizabeth Evangelization Committee and Father Sean are pleased to announce William Murphy will present a 60 minute talk before 4pm mass on "The Origins of Christmas". He will explain how ancient calendric sources and speculations led to the celebration of the Feast of the Nativity on December 25th.

William Murphy is a senior catechist for the Archdiocese of Chicago, with a degree in historical theology from Loyola University. He is a past president of the Religion and Ethics Institute and member of the Chicago Society of Biblical Research. For 15 years he also provided adult religious education for the three Evanston, Illinois parishes. William and his wife Catherine are active members of St. Elizabeth's parish.

Please mark your calendars for the holiday event of the season! The St. Joseph Catholic Academy Annual Christmas Show, Elf Jr. and the always-popular Santa Breakfast will be held on Sun., Dec. 9th. Don't miss this wonderful opportunity to kick off the holiday season with good friends, a festive show, a delicious breakfast, and Santa Claus!
