Christmas Gift Giving Tree 2025

This year "Our Lady of Mount Carmel" is once again sponsoring a "Gift Giving Tree". We will be helping needy families from Brass School.

A Christmas tree with tags on it will be located in the entry way of the church. Please take tag(s) the weekends of 11/15 + 11/16 and 11/22 + 11/23. Please buy a gift appropriate for the tag, and return the gift back to the church by no later than 12 noon Mass on 11/30. Attach the tag to the wrapped gift, so we will know how to direct the gift. The gifts will be taken to the schools the week of 12/08 and the school faculty then delivers the gifts to the homes of the families. Please help brighten Christmas for these needy families. Money donations would also be appreciated. Money gifts are used for food vouchers that are evenly divided amongst the families. Please put money donations in an envelope marked "Gift Giving Tree", in the collection basket. If you take a tag from the tree, please be sure to return a gift by the 11/30 noon Mass. All tags must be accounted for. THANK YOU !!!!!

You're Invited!

The All Saints Catholic Middle School students invite you to their production of Disney's Dare to Dream, Jr. Please join us for an evening of spectacular entertainment for ALL ages.

Catholic Replies

by James J. Drummey (www.wandererpress.com, 10/30/25)
Q. Blase J. Cardinal Cupich drew considerable criticism for wanting to honor pro- abortion Sen. Dick Durbin of Illinois. He defended his decision by saying that Sen. Durbin was good on other issues, such as immigration. I know Durbin subsequently declined to accept the award, but what about putting immigration on a par with abortion? A. In a letter sent to the U. S. bishops in June 2004, Joseph Cardinal Ratzinger of the Vatican's Sacred Congregation (now Dicastery) for the Doctrine of the Faith said that "not all moral issues have the same moral weight as abortion and euthanasia. For example, if a Catholic were to be at odds with the Holy Father on the application of capital punishment or on the decision to wage war, he would not for that reason be considered unworthy to present himself to receive Holy Communion."

"While the Church exhorts civil authorities to seek peace, not war, and to exercise discretion and mercy in imposing punishment on criminals," Ratzinger continued, "it may still be permissible to take up arms to repel an aggressor or to have recourse to capital punishment. There may be a legitimate diversity of opinion, even among Catholics, about waging war and applying the death penalty, but not however with regard to abortion and euthanasia."

[Regarding the enforcement laws regarding immigration, the morality of which the Catechism of the Catholic Church acknowledges (see CCC no. 2241): the arrest and deportation of illegal immigrants would not be comparable to the brutal murder of preborn babies in the womb.]

The incredible story of the ex-satanist St. Bartolo Longo canonized by Pope Leo XIV

St. Bartolo Longo committed himself to spreading devotion to the Rosary after he was afflicted with despair over his past as a satanist. He went on to create a confraternity of the Rosary and helped convert the city of Pompeii.

Emily Mangiaracina (LifeSiteNews, Oct. 22, 2025) — The ex-satanist St. Bartolo Longo was canonized by Pope Leo XIV on Sunday, Oct. 19. Longo is a particularly fitting saint for our times, when witchcraft and interest in the occult is surging, as it was when Longo was a young man in Italy in the 1860s. Born into a devout Catholic family, Longo was influenced by the anti-Catholic milieu of the University of Naples, where he studied law.

The movement to unify Italian states at the time was shaped by anti-Catholic Freemasons who were passionately anti-clerical and wished to abolish the papacy, such as General Giuseppe Garibaldi and Giuseppe Mazzini. Longo's professors were likewise anti-Catholic and passed on their secular ideology to students at the University of Naples, including Longo.

Occultism and spiritualism were also growing in popularity. Many students demonstrated against the pope, consulted mediums, dabbled in witchcraft. Bartolo went further: he became a satanic "priest." He told how during his "ordination" ceremony, he gave his soul to a "spirit," a demon, which manifested in "blasphemous shrieks" and shook the walls.

Bartolo dedicated himself to the satanic cause, publicly belittling the Catholic faith and even convincing others to leave the Catholic Church to join the occult. But his new life came with torments. He suffered from depression, paranoia, and anxiety and showed signs of diabolical obsession, including demonic visions. Bartolo eventually suffered a mental breakdown. At rock bottom, he heard the voice of his deceased father urging him to "Return to God! Return to God!"

Longo sought help from a professor friend, who convinced him to renounce satanism and introduced him to a Dominican priest, Father Alberto Radente, who heard his confession. Longo became a Third Order Dominican in 1871, as part of reparation for his past sins. He attended a seance where he stood and raised a medal of the Blessed Mother and declared, "I renounce spiritism because it is nothing but a maze of error and falsehood."

As I pondered over my condition, I experienced a deep sense of despair and almost committed suicide. Then I heard an echo in my ear of the voice of Friar Alberto repeating the words of the Blessed Virgin Mary: "If you seek salvation, promulgate the Rosary. This is Mary's own promise." These words illumined my soul. I went on my knees. "If it is true ... I will not leave this valley until I have propagated your Rosary," he promised the Blessed Virgin.

With the help of Countess Mariana di Fusco, Longo created a confraternity of the Rosary and restored a rundown church in Pompeii, to help nourish the starving souls there. He sponsored a festival in honor of Our Lady of the Rosary and acquired a painting of Our Lady of the Rosary he had renovated and placed in the church, and "within hours" of its installation began many miracles attributed to prayer before the painting.

In one such miracle, a young girl from Naples, Fortuna Agrelli, was cured from a painful, incurable disease not understood by her doctors. After beginning a novena of Rosaries for her cure, Our Lady appeared to the girl as Our Lady of Pompeii, sitting on a throne, with the Child Jesus on Her lap and holding a rosary. Fortuna asked Her as "Queen of the Rosary" to be healed, and the Blessed Mother told her to make three novenas of the Rosary to obtain all she asked for. The girl did, and was cured. Mary afterward appeared to her saying: "Whosoever desires to obtain favors from Me should make three novenas of the prayers of the Rosary in petition and three novenas in thanksgiving."

Bartolo devoted himself to evangelization and catechesis, writing many books and pamphlets and giving conferences on Christ and the Blessed Mother. He also founded charitable institutions in Pompeii, including an orphanage, trade school, and congregation of sisters. He went on to construct a larger church in 1876, which in 1939 was expanded to a basilica and is known now as the Shrine of the Virgin of the Rosary of Pompeii. Annually on the feast of Our Lady of Pompeii, Italians still flock to the shrine.

Bartolo sparked a widespread devotion to the Rosary that spread throughout Italy and beyond and helped snuff out occult practice in the Naples region. On his deathbed, he prayed the Rosary with orphans he had helped educate. His last words were, "My only desire is to see Mary, who has saved me and who will save me from the clutches of Satan."

Longo's cause for canonization was opened in 1947, and in 1980, he was beatified by Pope John Paul II, who called him the "Apostle of the Rosary." The ordinary session of the cardinals and bishops of the Dicastery for the Causes of Saints voted for Longo to be canonized, and the vote was approved by Pope Francis in February of 2025.
