October: Month of the Holy Rosary

The Church dedicates the entire month of October to the Holy Rosary so that individuals, families, and communities would pray the Holy Rosary, if possible, daily, for peace in the world. Rosaries and instructions for how to say the rosary are in the vestibule. Help Yourself to a rosary in the vestibule, they have been blessed. Prayer makes a difference - pray, pray, pray.

St. Pio of Pietrelcina (1887-1968)

One of the most beloved of contemporary saints, "Padre Pio" became a Capuchin novice when he was 16. He was ordained a priest in 1910, and in 1918 he became the first priest in history to bear the stigmata (the visible wounds of Christ). He often is quoted as saying: "Love the Madonna and pray the Rosary, for her Rosary is the weapon against the evils of the world today." The Padre Pio Foundation of America has more information about Padre Pio.

TODAY IS WORLD MISSION SUNDAY. We celebrate this day by remembering our baptismal call – to bring the Gospel to all! The collection today for the Society for the Propagation of the Faith supports the work and witness of the Mission Church, as it provides for priests, religious and lay leaders who offer the Lord's mercy and concrete help to the most vulnerable communities in the Pope's missions. Thank you for your generosity.

Faith Sharing – Dave Cadden

CCC32. {Catechism of the Catholic Church} "Ever since the creation of the world His invisible nature, namely His eternal power and deity have been clearly perceived in the things that have been made."

When I was young, I enjoyed playing with magnets. I would take a couple of small magnets, put them on a table and move one of them very slowly towards the other and see that the one not touched would move on its own towards the one I was holding. I was too young to know or understand at the time the nature of a magnetic field. But I was fascinated by seeing that I could cause something to move without touching it. I would move one magnet closer than the other magnet would move on its own closer until suddenly the untouched magnet would crash into the one I was holding. God's nature exists in all that He has created even in the property of two small magnets. For it's in these created things that we see in the nature of a magnetic field His invisible love drawing us ever closer to Him through the action in prayer, the Eucharist, and reconciliation. He continues to move closer to us and we continue to move closer to Him until suddenly our hearts touch and like the action of magnets that upon which we come to experience an inseparable bond within His embrace.

Saint Thomas Aquinas on the presence of God in created things states "God is in all things not indeed, as part of the essence, nor as an accident, but as an agent is present to that upon which it works, {God created magnets and magnets point to His reality} for an agent must be joined to that wherein it acts immediately and touch it by its power. {God's invisible field of love drawing us to Him}. Hence the thing moved {us}, and the mover {God} must be joined together." {our hearts are joined to God's} God exists in all forms of creation and it holds the essence of divine revelation. For me it is comforting to know that no matter how much I reach for the complete knowledge of our Lord's presence in His creation from the smallest to the greatest objects I will always fall short of the grasp of Him, but I know that in turn He is using created things to reach out and grasp me.

ST JOSEPH MARELLO: DID YOU KNOW?

After the requisition of the seminary building in the Diocese of Asti by the army, the decision was made to have many of the seminarians transfer to Turin and to study with there with St. Don Bosco at his oratory. Many of these were companions of Marelo, which begs the question: Did he also go to Don Bosco? He did not go, but instead remained in Asti. This was because he had been allowed to take the exam for entering into his philosophy studies early and had passed. He was allowed to do this because of his good grades and his good conduct. A model seminarian, it would seem...however, the summer before this his hometown pastor, Mons. Torchio, had written to the seminarian authorities expressing some concerns about Marelo and another seminarian from San Martino, Michele Rabezzana. Mons. Torchio wrote that he did not find anything immoral in their conduct but a lack of expressing love for the Church and the observance of her rules. It would seem that the lack of a proper formative environment in the seminary due to the requisition of the building itself was having a negative effect. This negative effect would continue as Marelo continued his studies in Asti.

The seminarians who remained in Asti for their philosophy studies were forced to take up lodging with families in the city while attending classes in the bishop's residence during the day. As one can imagine, this left much room for idle time and idle thoughts. In this environment, our Giuseppe passed two years of philosophy studies, 1860-1862. His marks were always excellent but his commitment to becoming a priest began to waver.

This was caused certainly by the lack of a true formative environment and the political and social movement for the unification of Italy which was ongoing. We find indications of a certain fascination with this movement in the writings of Marelo. There were also some serious accusations of misconduct by clergy, many of which were false. However, this led Marelo to believe that he might be better off as a good layperson rather than a bad priest! His uncertainty of being called to the priesthood was enhanced by his father's desire, always present, that Giuseppe pursue a career in the world and be a good layperson. This desire of his father has at times been seen as undue pressure on Marelo to leave the seminary. The fact is that Vincenzo never put such pressure on his son, as attested to by his other son, Vittorio. Whatever the reasons, the fact is that after finishing his second year of philosophy studies in 1862, Giuseppe Marelo decided to leave the seminary and to pursue business studies in the city of Turin. What would this new adventure bring for our Marelo? Turn in next time!
