Deacon Ed Garza ed.garza@sacredheartwdm.org

As many of you know my son, Damien has gone through a health crisis recently. Three weeks ago his liver and kidneys shut down for no apparent reason. For a few days he literally was at death's door. He was put on the highest priority list for a liver transplant. It was at that time that hundreds of people from family and friends, parishioners from Sacred Heart, other parishes, a Quaker Church, three orders of nuns, Catholic school students, and even strangers started praying for Damien's recovery. Soon after wards his liver started coming back to life. The doctors are at a lost for the quick recovery but as Christians we know the reason why. My wife and I personally want to thank all of you for your prayers for Damien. Below is an article that backs up our need to pray for each other for physical, emotional, and spiritual healing.

Science Proves the Healing Power of Prayer

For the devout, there never has been any question that prayer has the power to heal. Now, more and more medical research from leading hospitals and universities across the U.S. has shown conclusively a belief in God really IS good for you, making you healthier and happier, and helping you live longer. "Studies have shown prayer can prevent people from getting sick — and when they do get sick, prayer can help them get better faster," states Duke University's Harold G. Koenig, M.D. An exhaustive analysis of more than 1,500 reputable medical studies "indicates people who are more religious and pray more have better mental and physical health," Dr. Koenig says. "And out of 125 studies that looked at the link between health and regular worship, 85 showed regular churchgoers live longer. "There's a lot of evidence out there." Dr. Koenig — director of Duke's Center for Spirituality, Theology and Health and the author of several authoritative books on faith and healing — says a striking study published in the Southern Medical Journal demonstrated that prayer has a remarkable effect on patients with hearing and visual deficiencies. After prayer sessions, "They showed significant improvements based on audio and visual tests," Dr. Koenig said. He added: "The benefits of devout religious practice, particularly involvement in a faith community and religious commitment, are that people cope better. In general, they cope with stress better, they experience greater well-being because they have more hope, they're more optimistic, they experience less depression, less anxiety, and they commit suicide less often. They have stronger immune systems, lower blood pressure, and probably better cardiovascular functioning ."The proof of the power of prayer is overwhelming, says researcher and writer Tom Knox, a one -time atheist who became a regular worshipper after doing in-depth study of the medical benefits of faith.

What I discovered astonished me," admits Knox. "Over the past 30 years a growing and largely unnoticed body of scientific work shows religious belief is medically, socially, and psychologically beneficial." Study after study backs up the benefits of having faith, especially in prolonging life. In 2006, population researchers at the University of Texas discovered that the more often you go to church, the longer you live. "Religious attendance is associated with adult mortality in a graded fashion," says Knox. "There is a seven-year difference in life expectancy between those who never attend church and those who attend weekly." The American Journal of Public Health studied nearly 2,000 older Californians for five years and found that those who attended religious services were 36 percent less likely to die during that period than those who didn't. A study of nearly 4,000 older adults for the U.S. Journal of Gerontology revealed that atheists had a significantly increased chance of dying over a six-year period than the faithful. Crucially, religious people lived longer than atheists even if they didn't go regularly to a place of worship. The American Society of Hypertension established in 2006 that church-goers have lower blood pressure than nonbelievers. Scientists have also revealed believers recover from breast cancer guicker than non-believers, have better outcomes from coronary disease and rheumatoid arthritis, and are less likely to have children with meningitis. Research at San Francisco General Hospital looked at the effect of prayer on 393 cardiac patients. Half were prayed for by strangers who had only the patients' names. Those patients had fewer complications, fewer cases of pneumonia, and needed less drug treatment. They also got better quicker and left the hospital earlier. Concluded Knox: "Atheists can sneer at faith all they like, but they can't assume science is on their side"

FOR ALL PARISHIONERS

GRATEFUL HEART ~ GIVING HEART

Part 2 from "A Summary of the U.S. Bishops' Pastoral Letter on Stewardship.

Disciples as Stewards

Let us begin with being a disciple—a follower of our Lord Jesus Christ. As members of the Church, Jesus calls us to be disciples. This has astonishing implications

- Mature disciples make a conscious decision to follow Jesus, no matter what the cost.
- Christian disciples experience conversion—life shaping changes of mind and heart—and commit their very selves to the Lord.
- Christian stewards respond in a particular way to the call to be a disciple. Stewardship has the power to shape and mold our understanding of our lives and the way in which we live.

Jesus' disciples and Christian stewards recognize God as the origin of life, giver of freedom, and source of all things. We are grateful for the gifts we have received and are eager to use them to show our love for God and for one another. We look to the life and teaching of Jesus for guidance in living as Christian stewards.

ADVERTISE IN THE BULLETIN!

During the week of May 14th, John Kirchner, our parish representative from Liturgical Publications, Inc, will be working on our bulletin and contacting potential advertisers for the back page (The Preferred Business Directory). Please consider advertising on the bulletin since the revenue from the ads is what makes the bulletin possible at no cost to Sacred Heart. It's also a great way to get your name in front of the families in the parish!

Advertisements can be purchased for a family or a sponsorship ad for worthy organizations. However, this is especially suited for:

- 1. A business to promote what they do to a very loyal group of customers
- 2. An opportunity for us to connect our Parish families with trustworthy businesses that support the paris
- 3. While benefitting the parish at the same time.

Please do give these ideas some thought. We need and appreciate your help! If you are interested or just curious to check it out, please call John Kirchner at the parish office that week or feel free to email him anytime at jkirchner@4LPi.com.

MASS PARTICIPATION TRAINING

Don't miss this opportunity to be more involved at Sacred Heart. Participating in the Mass is a rewarding way to give back to your community. All training will be done in the church and you get to schedule what weekends/Mass times work best for you!!!! Get trained in one or ALL (extra credit for the ALL people!)
