A Way to Be Blessed

One of the most common greetings of our faith is to wish God's blessings upon each other. We say it all the time: "God bless you" or "Bless you". We even say it when someone sneezes, hoping they aren't getting sick. (Actually one theory is that a sneeze caused someone to expel their soul out of their body so blessing them was a way to protect them against the devil having a chance to enter!)

To know God's blessing is a blessing—a gift, a grace. Of course as human beings, we never bless God; God blesses us and so we wish that blessing upon others. I mention all this because to be blessed is the focus of today's readings. In the Old Testament, to be blessed by God showed itself in the lives of those who received it. Good health, prosperity, children, property, inheritance, land, were all signs of God's blessing.

But the blessings Jesus talks about in the gospel today—the Beatitudes—reveal something that can cause us to scratch our heads. Jesus tells us we can be blessed when we're poor in spirit, when we mourn, when we're meek, and even when we're persecuted and hated because of him. These experiences are often painful, uncomfortable, and even avoided. Whether Mother Teresa actually said it or not, she is attributed to saying: "I know God will not give me anything I can't handle. I just wish that He didn't trust me so much."

Can what seem like a curse actually be a blessing? It seems that's what Jesus wants us to think about. He's captured our attention. And I've been thinking about it and praying it through for most of my life and probably always will.

One thing I've come to see over the years, is that perhaps what Jesus wants me to realize is that blessings come when I change the focus from what I think will make me happy, to focus on others. It's an attitude and a way of being. And, when I adapt that attitude, blessings do come; they return in acts of kindness and love that enrich my life more than things and possessions.

And so, when I mourn, it means I've loved and been loved; I find comfort in being with others. When I don't act aggressively to be seen and heard, but appear to others to be meek and mild (i.e., weak), I inherit the ability to listen and grow in wisdom and understanding. When I work toward peace, I work toward bringing people together instead of dividing and separating. When I stand up for the faith or the Church, which takes courage, I have to be ready for insults and hurt, but I stand on a foundation of strength that keeps me going. To be poor in spirit, is to realize I'm not ashamed to say I need God in my life and always will. God is like air, and water, and food. It's essential.

So, maybe today is a day to think about the ways we find God's blessings, but none other than in the most unexpected ways. God's goodness can be felt in all of life, in the good times and hard times and in everything in between.

May God bless you!

—Fr. Mike

It's Catholic Schools Week!

One of the great blessings we have at St. Hubert is our Catholic School. We're proud of all the ways our school educates and helps students enrich and develop their faith. The 8 Beatitudes are not just a lesson plan but are also virtues that we try to instill in our students, virtues like compassion, service and perseverance. If you're able, stop by the school for a tour after the 8 AM Sunday Mass and talk with students, parents, teachers, and our principal Mrs. Martin. Learn about the many good things taking place at our National Blue Ribbon School.

*“Blessed are the poor in spirit,
for theirs is the kingdom of heaven.”*
—Matthew 5:3

In my parents' bedroom there were on the wall two photos of my mom and dad from their early adulthoods. The photo of my mother entranced me when I was a boy. I loved looking at it, even though I saw her in daily life. Something about that picture captured her perfectly. It was an image of the joy, wisdom, beauty, and strength that enveloped me from the start of my life. It was an icon of the woman who fed, taught, and encouraged me. I felt a deep pride that I came from such beauty.

The beatitudes of Jesus are a kind of self-portrait. But it is a strange picture. At first, the blessings of being poor, mourning, and hungering and thirsting for righteousness may seem bizarre or, worse, a religious delusion. Who wants to look like that? But if we look again, we begin to see the characteristics of Jesus' form. He becomes poor and fills it with his riches for us, he weeps and mourns for us, and fills it with his joy, he hungers and thirsts for us to be righteous, and so satisfies us. And so on. It's the way he appears on the cross.

Perhaps we should put on our bedroom room walls the words of the beatitudes next to a crucifix of the Lord Jesus. Then we can do what the beatitudes are designed for, to gaze at the joy, wisdom, beauty, and strength of the one who is our origin, and who is with us every day. And little by little, we'll start to look like him.

— Father John Muir

Question of the Week

Jesus begins his Sermon on the Mount with a list of eight “beatitudes” (blessings). Which of these beatitudes do you see in yourself?

On Blessed and Cursed Consciousness

There's a Buddhist parable that runs something like this: One day as the Buddha was sitting under a tree, a young, trim soldier walked by, looked at the Buddha, noticed his weight and his fat, and said: "You look like a pig!" The Buddha looked up calmly at the soldier and said: "And you look like God!" Taken aback by the comment, the soldier asked the Buddha: "Why do you say that I look like God?" The Buddha replied: "Well, we don't really see what's outside of ourselves, we see what's inside of us and project it out. I sit under this tree all day and I think about God, so that when I look out, that's what I see. And you, you must be thinking about other things!"

There's an axiom in philosophy that asserts that the way we perceive and judge is deeply influenced and colored by our own interiority. That's why it's never possible to be fully objective and that's why five people can witness the same event, see the same thing, and have five very different versions of what happened. Thomas Aquinas expressed this in a famous axiom: Whatever is received is received according to the mode of its receiver.

If this is true, and it is, then, as the Buddhist parable suggests, how we perceive others speaks volumes about what's going on inside of us. Among other things, it indicates whether we are operating out of a blessed or a cursed consciousness.

Let's begin with the positive, a blessed consciousness: We see this in Jesus, in how he perceived and in how he judged. His was a blessed consciousness. As the gospels describe it, at his baptism, the heavens opened and God's voice was heard to say: "This is my blessed one, in whom I take delight." And, it seems, for the rest of his life Jesus was always in some way conscious of his Father saying that to him: "You are my blessed one!" As a consequence, he was able to look out at the world and say: "Blessed are you when you are poor, or when you are persecuted, or suffering in any way. You are always blessed, no matter your circumstance in life." He knew his own blessedness, felt it, and, because of that, could operate out of a blessed consciousness, a consciousness that could look out and see others and the world as blessed.

Sadly, for many of us, the opposite is true: We perceive others and the world not through a blessed consciousness but through a cursed consciousness. We have been cursed and because of that, in whatever subtle ways, we curse others.

What's a curse? A curse is not the colorful language that comes out of our mouths when we get stuck in traffic or when we slice our golf ball the wrong way. What we say then may be in bad taste and highly profane, but it's not a curse. A curse is more pernicious.

Cursing is what we do when we look at someone whom we don't like and think or say: "I wish you weren't here! I hate your presence! I wish you'd go away!" Cursing is what we do when we are affronted by the joyous screams of a child and we say: "Shut up! Don't irritate me!" Cursing is what we do when we look at someone and think or say: "What an idiot! What a jerk!"

Cursing is what we do whenever we look at another person judgmentally and think or say: "Who do you think you are! You think you're an artist! You think you've got talent! You don't, you're full of yourself!" Notice in each of these examples that what is being said is the antithesis of what the Father said to Jesus' at his baptism: "You are my blessed one, in you I take delight!"

If any of us could play back our lives as a video we would see the countless times, especially when we were young, when we were subtly cursed, when we heard or intuited the words: Shut up! Who do you think you are! Go away! You aren't wanted here! You're not that important! You're stupid! You're full of yourself! All of these were times when our energy and enthusiasm were perceived as a threat and we were, in effect, shut down.

And the residual result in us is shame, depression, and a cursed consciousness. Unlike Jesus we don't see others and the world as blessed. Instead, like the young soldier looking at an overweight Buddha under a tree, our spontaneous judgments are swift and lethal: "You look like a pig!"

Whatever is received is received according to the mode its receiver. Our harsh judgments of others say less about them than they say about us. Our negativity about others and the world speaks mostly of how bruised and wounded, ashamed and depressed, we are - and how little we ourselves have ever heard anyone say to us: "In you I take delight!"

Prayer Shawl Ministry News!

St. Hubert Prayer Shawl Ministry will be holding our next meeting on Sunday, February 5 at 1:00 PM in the Dorothy Day Room in the Parish Ministry Center. This meaningful ministry has been going strong for over 17 years and has made and distributed several hundred beautiful shawls to members of our community. The shawls are crocheted or knitted on your own time in a prayerful way. An example: While waiting in a doctor's office, instead of getting stressed over the long waiting time, working on a prayer shawl is calming and guaranteed to elicit comments and questions about our ministry.

We are always looking for new members! Won't you please consider joining our group? If you have questions, please contact Marie Staffa at 847-885-7700, ext. 124 or mstaffa@sainthubert.org.

Good News to Share: Thanks for Investing in Kids!

As we celebrate Catholic Schools Week, we also celebrate everyone who is participating in the Illinois Invest in Kids Act—the Illinois State Income Tax Credit Scholarship Program. Through the generosity of donors to the Archdiocese of Chicago, donations made to scholarship granting organizations helping Catholic Schools are being matched dollar for dollar for a limited time.

Due to your efforts, St Hubert School has raised $45,300 so far, and that means $45,300 is being matched for a total $90,600 which will directly help St. Hubert School families in need. The great news is that there is still $1.5 million available in matching funds and there's still time to participate in the program. There's more information on how the program works both on our church and school websites. Or feel free to contact our Operations Director, Joyce Manfre, at the parish office.

Thank you to everyone for your generosity and supporting Catholic education!

ARE YOU HOPING YOUR ABUSIVE PARTNER WILL CHANGE???

The reality is the abuse will probably keep happening. Abusers have deep emotional and psychological problems.

Leaving an abusive partner is a very difficult thing to do. It frequently feels like you are failing, or destroying your family, or not trying to work things out, or not giving your partner a second, third, fourth, etc. chance.

You may believe you can help your partner stop the abuse, but the truth is that by staying and accepting repeated abuse, you're reinforcing and enabling the behavior. Instead of helping your abuser, you're perpetuating the problem.
