Our Advocates

In today's gospel, Jesus shares an incredible truth. He lets us know that he will never leave us abandoned— orphaned. Instead, he will send the Holy Spirit to us, who he insightfully calls an “advocate”.

If you ask Siri or Alexa what an advocate is, she'll tell you it's someone who pleads the cause of another; someone who supports another. So what Jesus is saying to us is telling. The name Jesus means “the Lord saves.” The name Jesus gives the Holy Spirit is Advocate. Both are descriptions.

What I also find so meaningful is that Jesus tells us he is an Advocate, too. He says the Holy Spirit is “another Advocate” who is just like himself. Both are with us to plead our cause, to support us, to travel through life with us. And, what Jesus says is true of himself, is also true of his Father. So, God the Father, God the Son, and God the Holy Spirit exist in the essence of who they are together, and together they give themselves fully to us.

That's truly meaningful on this day we remember and celebrate our mothers. We realize so much of the identity of a mom is that of someone who advocates for her children; someone who pleads their cause, someone who just instinctively gives herself fully to them. In fact, when we say “my mom” in the fondest of ways, it most likely takes us to a place in the heart where we feel loved, held, cared for and, hopefully, simply accepted for who we are. A mom cannot help but love her children. They are a part of her very being.

It's no wonder that God tells us he created us in his image and likeness. Just as God is an advocate for us, we're meant to advocate for each other. If anyone shows us that, most likely, it's our moms. If we're blessed to be able to talk with our moms today or visit them, we hopefully will see it as a true blessing. If our moms go before us in faith, we know that we can ask them to continue to pray for us—to advocate for us—to the Advocate who understands.

Good News

- Congratulations to all our Confirmandi who received the gift of the Holy Spirit on Saturday. Their names appear on our front cover, which gives them pride of place. That's because we're truly proud of them as they travelled through the past two years getting ready for this very important moment. They became God the Father's children in Baptism, united themselves with God the Son in the Eucharist, and now have received God the Holy Spirit in Confirmation. That's a full initiation into the life of God and into the life of the Church. Congratulations!
- Effective May 11, the Archdiocese has lifted all their remaining COVID restrictions. This means a couple of things for all of us. First, the wearing of masks that we've asked our liturgical ministers to wear at certain times during the Mass, is now at the option of each individual. The second is that the Archdiocese is allowing us to resume the practice of sharing the Precious Blood of Christ in the common cup. We have to work out some logistics before we re-implement this, but are hopeful we can resume in time for Pentecost. Of course, receiving from the cup is not obligatory. We receive the fullness of the Body and Blood of Christ in the host; but for those who have longed to receive from the cup again, it will be available to us when, and if, you're ready. We've been through a long journey with each other, holding on to all that we've been asked to do by the Archdiocese to keep everyone as safe as could be. We now move forward in that same hope.

Together, we're in the hands of our Advocates!

"If you love me, you will keep my commandments.

And I will ask the Father,

*and he will give you another Advocate to be with you always,
the Spirit of truth, whom the world cannot accept,
because it neither sees nor knows him."*

—John 14:15-17

My dad was adopted as a baby. It's a big part of my family's story. His birth mother placed him in a Catholic orphanage not long after birth. A young couple longing for a baby strolled among the bassinets. My father, then only a few months old, looked at the husband and smiled. The man said, "That's my son." They took him home and the family grew. This moment of adoption was a wonderful truth they celebrated even when my dad was a young boy. They told him, "You're even more special than the other children, because we chose you to be our son." My dad's eyes well up with tears of gratitude whenever he tells the story, even eighty-three years later.

What is your story? Do we think or act like unwanted orphans? Who do we believe ourselves to be? As we continue to ponder Jesus' resurrection, we hear him say to us this Sunday, "I will not leave you orphans." God doesn't leave us alone like spiritual orphans. The power that raised Jesus from the dead is the Holy Spirit, who is also called the Spirit of Adoption. He chooses us to be His children, to share God's life forever. He gives us a future filled with hope.

We are not orphans anymore! This Easter, that's the story we should share with others. It's the true story we are living right now.

Our Best Farewell Gift

In his farewell speech in John's Gospel, Jesus tells us that he is going away but that he will leave us a parting gift, the gift of his peace, and that we will experience this gift in the spirit he leaves behind.

How does this work? How do we leave peace and a spirit behind us as we go?

This is not something abstract, but something we experience (perhaps only unconsciously) all the time in all our relationships. It works this way. Each of us brings a certain energy into every relationship we have, and when we walk into a room, that energy in some way affects what everyone else in the room is feeling. Moreover, it will stay with them after we leave. We leave a spirit behind us.

For example, if I enter a room and my person and presence radiate positive energy: trust, stability, gratitude, concern for others, joy in living, wit, and humor, that energy will affect everyone in the room and will remain with them after I have left the room, as the spirit that I leave behind. Conversely, even though my words might try to say the contrary, if my person and presence radiate negative energy: anger, jealousy, bitterness, lying, or chaos, everyone will sense that, and that negative energy will remain with them after I leave, coloring everything I have left behind.

Sigmund Freud once suggested that we understand things the clearest when we see them broken, and that is true here. We see this writ large, for instance, in the case of how a long-term alcoholic parent affects his children. Despite trying not to do so, he will invariably bring a certain instability, distrust, and chaos into his family, and it will stay there after he is gone, as the spirit he leaves behind, short-term and long-term. His person and his presence will trigger a feeling of distrust and chaos, and the memory of him will do the same.

The same is true in reverse vis-à-vis those who bring positive energy, stability and trust, into a room. Unfortunately, often at the time, we do not sense the real gift that these persons bring and what that gift does for us. Mostly it is felt as an unspoken energy, not consciously perceived, and only later in our lives (often long after the persons who did that for us are gone) do we recognize and consciously appreciate what their presence did for us. This is true for me when I think back on the safety and stability of the home that my parents provided for me. As child, I sometimes longed for more exciting parents and naively felt safety and stability more as boredom than as a gift. Years later, long after I had left home and learned from others how starved they were as kids for safety and stability, I recognized the great gift my parents had given me. Whatever their human shortcomings, they provided my siblings and me with a stable and safe place within which to grow up. They died while we were still young, but they left us the gift of peace. I suspect the same is true for many of you.

This dynamic (wherein we bring either stability or chaos into a room) is something which daily colors every relationship we have, and is particularly true regarding the spirit we will leave behind us when we die. Death clarifies things, washes things clean, especially regarding how we are remembered and how our legacy affects our loved ones. When someone close to us dies, our relationship to him or her will eventually wash clean and we will know exactly the gift or burden that he or she was in our lives. It may take some time, perhaps months, perhaps years, but we will eventually receive the spirit he or she left behind with clarity and know it as gift or burden.

And so, we need to take seriously the fact that our lives belong not just to us but also to others. Likewise, our deaths do not belong only to us, but also to our families, our loved ones, and the world. We are meant to give both our lives and our deaths to others as gift. If this is true, then our dying is something that will impart either a gift or a burden to those who know us.

To paraphrase Henri Nouwen, if we die with guilt, shame, anger, or bitterness, all of that becomes part of the spirit we leave behind, binding and burdening the lives of our family and friends. Conversely, our dying can be our final gift to them. If we die without anger, reconciled, thankful for those around us, at peace with things, without recrimination and making others feel guilty, our going away will be a sadness but not a binding and a burdening. Then the spirit we leave behind, our real legacy, will continue to nourish others with the same warm energy we used to bring into a room.

Blessing of Mothers

During the season of Easter, what a great time to remember our mothers and ask for God's blessing on them. It is God who ultimately gave us life. It is through God's unselfish love--mirrored in our mothers' willingness to associate their love with God's and take the risk to love us into life--that we have the opportunity for life. We remember our mothers this Mother's Day with much love. Let us pray for each of them:

*God our heavenly Father, you give to each the ability to share your generative love.
Bless those women in our lives who mirror your love and bring forth life through their willingness to risk bringing new life into this world.
Help us to show them our gratitude for the gift of life and the gift of a mother's love.
May our life-giving God continue to bless them and show them his unfailing love.
We ask this through Jesus, God's Son and our brother.
Amen.*
