PRAYER CORNER
Prayer of the Week
Praying with the SAINTS
& for all SOULS

All Saints Day and All Souls Day are deeply rooted in Catholic tradition and are especially meaningful when approached through prayer. These days are not only liturgical celebrations but also powerful opportunities for personal and communal prayer that connect us with the broader spiritual family, the saints in heaven and the souls of the departed.

On All Saints Day (November 1st), Catholics are encouraged to pray in thanksgiving for the lives of the saints and to ask for their intercession. This can be done through the Liturgy of the Hours, the Rosary, or personal prayers to specific saints. Attending Mass is central, as it is the highest form of prayer and worship. Many also pray the Litany of the Saints, which calls upon a wide range of holy men and women to pray for us. These prayers remind us that the saints are not distant figures, but active members of the Body of Christ who continue to support us through their prayers.

On All Souls Day (November 2nd), prayer takes on a more solemn tone. Catholics pray for the souls in purgatory, asking God to grant them eternal rest. The most powerful prayer for the dead is the Holy Mass, and many people have Masses offered for deceased loved ones. Other traditional prayers include the Eternal Rest prayer ("Eternal rest grant unto them, O Lord...") and the Rosary, especially the Sorrowful Mysteries. Visiting cemeteries to pray for the dead is also encouraged, and indulgences can be gained under certain conditions for the souls in purgatory.

On All Saints Day, we pray with the saints; on All Souls Day, we pray for the departed. In both, we participate in the Communion of Saints, affirming that through Christ, we remain spiritually united with all who have gone before us.

Gospel Meditation

Encourage Deeper Understanding of Scripture

I lost my wallet this year. It was such an annoyance to replace everything in it. A friend, moved by sympathy, gave me a beautiful new one. One month later I lost that one, too, with all my newly replaced cards. No matter what I did, I couldn't find what I had lost. I resigned myself to never seeing either of my wallets again.

Fortunately, the Lord Jesus is not like me in this regard. In today's Gospel (John 6:37–40), he says, "This is the will of the one who sent me, that I should not lose anything of what he gave me." Jesus, unlike me, is ever vigilant with what the Father has given him. He searches for every lost soul — as the shepherd leaves the ninety-nine to pursue the one lost sheep, or the woman rejoices upon recovering a lost coin — and even descends to the depths of loss on the cross and into the realm of the dead to recover that which seems forever lost.

On All Souls' Day, as we remember our faithful departed, these words kindle a hope beyond hope in our hearts. Even the dead are not lost to Jesus, though they may seem so to us. Nothing entrusted to him by the Father is ever truly lost. So, we may hope that every soul, no matter how wandering or forgotten in life, is secure in his loving care and destined to be raised on the last day. Of what the Father gives him, he loses nothing.

— Father John Muir

FINDING REST FOR OUR SOULS

Several years ago, Yale philosopher, Nicholas Wolterstorff, wrote a book entitled, Lament for a Son. It's a chronicle of his struggles to come to grips with the death of his 25 year old son, Eric, who died in a mountain climbing accident.

His approach is like Job's. He keeps asking: "Why? Why was a young person with such potential so tragically struck down? How does one make sense of a life that ends before it's given a chance to really achieve anything?"

Assessing Eric's untimely death, he comments: "His project was never finished. His notes lie mute in boxes. ... Does that matter? Most human beings do not contribute to the cultural deposit of humanity. They live out lives of routine as farmers, as housewives, as factory workers, as husbands, as mothers, as fathers; after two or three generations the earth knows of them no more. Others make creative additions to culture, things that get passed on through time. Would Eric's project have been such an addition? I do not know. Does it matter? Is his death to be lamented more than the death of another twenty five year old who spent his life in routine but through that routine loved those he knew, trusted God, and cherished the earth? What is it that we carry into God's abiding kingdom? Is it only love and faith and trust? Or is it culture too? I lament all that might have been, and now well never be." (Lament for a Son, pp. 21-22)

Wolterstorff makes this lament in the face of the death of his young son. But death takes many forms and, when our youthful day dreams die, we also ask the question: "Does it matter?"

Does it matter that, for virtually all of us, our notes written and unwritten, will lie mute in boxes? Does it matter that our life stories, with all their unique and precious insights, will not interest anyone, nor indeed even be known, after we die? Does it matter that, as Thoreau says, when we reach middle age we are forced into the kind of realism that salvages a woodshed from the materials we once gathered in hopes of building a bridge to the moon, or a palace or a temple?

These are painful questions and we do not do anyone a favour if we simplistically dismiss them with the suggestion that they should not arise in someone who prays and is humble. To fear living and dying in obscurity is not a sign of megalomania. The longing to leave a mark, to be significant, to have everyone in the whole world, now and in the future, know and appreciate us, is part of the ache for immortality. That ache, whether we admit it or not, is the drive behind much of what we do.

It's also behind a lot of our restlessness. Socrates once said that we come into life possessed by a divine madness which pushes us to try to recover wholeness by embracing another, by trying to perpetuate our seed, and by trying to get others to remember our deeds. Plato and Aquinas agreed. Popular philosophies of self-development, despite their habitually excessive narcissistic quality, say the same thing. They tell us that something inside of us needs "to plant a tree, have a child and write a book!"

But we don't need anyone to tell us this. The ache for immortality is part of our hard wiring, an instinct nearly synonymous with our drive for life itself. We are compulsively driven to leave something behind which will tell future generations that we were significant. Only in a true saint, in someone whose faith in God is so strong that he or she knows and trusts that the only mark (whether one is speaking of love or cultural achievement) which truly remains is the hidden mark one makes in the body of Christ, is this ache transformed so that it no longer restlessly haunts our every action. Those of us who aren't saints play out and act out the same familiar tapes and scripts. We compulsively plant trees, have children, and write books because we are in the business of trying to make some immortality for ourselves.

When Christ says: "Come to me all you who labour and are heavy burdened, and I will give you rest," the rest of which he speaks is not a rest that we can give ourselves through a good night's sleep or a good vacation. It's a much deep rest, a rest for the soul, a rest from all the compulsive restlessness that emanates from our congenital propensity to achieve that special something that would forever leave a mark.

Veterans Day weekend
November 8 & 9

Knights of Columbus will be in the church narthex after all Masses Veterans Day weekend November 8th and 9th to collect donations for their volunteer work with Wreaths Across America.

Our church council has volunteered and participated in this event over the last nine years and is asking for parishioners to help. Wreaths Across America provides wreaths to deceased veterans at more than 3,400 cemeteries across the country each year in order to remember their service, honor their sacrifice and to teach all the value of freedom. Each wreath placed is a personal gift to an American Hero.

In addition to asking for donations, Knights of Columbus will be inviting all parishioners to participate with them on Wreaths Across America Day on Saturday 11 AM Dec 13, 2025 at Abraham Lincoln National Cemetery in Elwood, IL. The cemetery is the second largest in the nation and is the final resting place for 70,000 veterans and/or their spouses.

Dear Holy Archangels Parishioners,

Hi! We are Natalia, Marcello & Kate, and we are in 7th grade. We attend and love our parish school, St. Hubert Catholic. Last year, an 8th grader created a raffle as a service project. Almost $10,000 was raised! We volunteered to do it this year, and ask for your support and encouragement.

The generous, awesome owner of Plum Grove Printing incredibly has provided the tickets again this year at no cost!

The drawing will be on Friday, November 14th, at a school assembly at about 1pm. The prizes will be: Grand $500, 2nd place $250, and 3rd place $100. Tickets are sold for $10 each, or 5 for $40.

Please can you help us? We would greatly appreciate your prayers and kindness! Thank you to everyone who purchased tickets already! We will again have tickets available after all Masses on the weekend November 1 & 2. Look for us at a table in the back of the churches.

Thank you for giving us this opportunity to help our school even though we are kids. We are counting on the adults to keep St. Hubert School healthy and strong, but we know we can make a difference too.

Appreciatively,
Natalia, Marcello & Kate
