Dear Parish Family,

As we step into this New Year, the Church invites us to celebrate January 1 as the Solemnity of Mary, the Holy Mother of God. This beautiful feast, marking the octave of Christmas, honors Mary not only as the Mother of Jesus Christ—true God and true man—but also as our own spiritual Mother. It is a profound way to begin the year, placing our hopes and plans under her loving intercession.

What a gift to start anew with Mary's example of perfect discipleship! At the Annunciation, when the angel Gabriel revealed God's plan for her, Mary responded with humble trust: "Behold, I am the handmaid of the Lord; let it be to me according to your word" (Luke 1:38). Her "fiat"—her total "yes" to God's will—opened the door to the Incarnation and our salvation. In a world often marked by self-reliance and hesitation, Mary's surrender reminds us that true peace and fruitfulness come from aligning our lives with God's desires. As we face the uncertainties of a new year, let us echo her words in our hearts, trusting that God's plan, though mysterious, is always for our good.

Reflecting on the past year, I am filled with gratitude for the visible progress we have made as a parish community. In so many ways—through our liturgies, outreach efforts, faith formation programs, and shared fellowship—we have grown closer to Christ and to one another. We have welcomed new families, deepened our prayer life, and responded generously to those in need. Yet, as in any living body, things can always be better. We must never grow complacent, for complacency stifles the Holy Spirit's work among us.

Many of our staff members are new and still learning the rhythms of parish life, bringing fresh energy and perspectives while navigating their roles. We continue the important work of combining our two churches, exploring creative ways to unite parishioners in worship, service, and friendship. This merger is a journey, not a destination, and it calls for patience, openness, and charity from all of us.

Above all, we are deeply blessed by the countless hours given by our volunteers. Your selfless dedication—whether in ministries, events, maintenance, or quiet acts of kindness—has been the heartbeat of our parish. Without you, much of what we accomplish would not be possible. Thank you for living out the Gospel in such tangible ways.

Looking ahead to the new year, I see abundant opportunities and areas for improvement. We will build on what we have accomplished, always with our eyes fixed on the Church's timeless mission: to make disciples of Jesus Christ. As our Lord commanded, "Go, therefore, and make disciples of all nations" (Matthew 28:19). In our parish context, this means inviting others to encounter Christ, forming faithful followers through catechesis and sacrament, and sending them out to share the Good News. Let us renew our commitment to evangelization, welcoming the unchurched, strengthening families in faith, and fostering vibrant small groups where discipleship can flourish.

May this new year be filled with happiness and joy in your lives. May challenges draw you closer to Christ, and may blessings overflow in your homes. Above all, may Christ be with you every day this year—guiding your steps, comforting your hearts, and filling you with His peace.

With prayerful wishes for a blessed 2026.

Father Tomy Abraham

 All Powerful God,

Watch over all our dear ones who serve this day in the military. Hold them safely in the palm of your hand.

Walk with them in your strength.

Bring them comfort and hope when they are weary.
 Remind them of our love.

Merciful Lord, Bring a lasting peace into our midst.
 Heal our hearts and help all nations find ways to live in harmony so that blood is shed no more.
 We ask this in the name of Christ Jesus, Prince of Peace.

Gospel Meditation

Encourage Deeper Understanding of Scripture

When I was 22, I went on a pilgrimage to Rome for the Jubilee Year of 2000. I was traveling light with just a backpack, one blue shirt and black pants, little money, and no Italian. I had a few close friends and one goal: to reach the Eternal City. Despite the challenges and deprivations, I felt alive in a way I had never known before.

When do you feel most alive? I'd wager it's not when you're most comfortable or surrounded by stuff. Rather, it's when your life is aimed at something great; when you're on a meaningful and challenging journey with good friends.

That's the image the Magi give us in today's Gospel. They set out from the East not with certainty, but with hope. They study the signs, discipline their attention, and journey together, offering the best they have when they find the newborn King.

The Church gives us their story at the start of the year to reawaken something in us. We are not meant to drift. We're meant to journey as pilgrims. The Jubilee Year of 2025 may have ended, but our pilgrimage has not. Like the magi, the closer we get to Christ, the more alive we become.

COMING TO PEACE WITH OUR LACK OF RECOGNITION

We crave few things as deeply as self-expression and recognition. We have an irrepressible need to express ourselves, be known, recognized, understood, and seen by others as unique, gifted, and significant. A heart that is unknown, unappreciated in its depth, lacking in meaningful self-expression and recognition, is prone to restlessness, frustration, and bitterness. And, truth be told, self-expression is difficult and full self-expression is impossible.

In the end, for most of us, our lives are always smaller than our needs and our dreams, no matter where we live or what we accomplish. In our daydreams each of us would like to be famous, the renowned writer, the graceful ballerina, the admired athlete, the movie star, the cover girl, the renowned scholar, the Nobel Prize winner, the household name; but in the end, most of us remain just another unknown, living among other unknowns, collecting an occasional autograph.

And so, our lives can seem too small for us. We feel ourselves as extraordinary, forever trapped inside the mundane, even as there is something inside us that still seeks expression, that still seeks recognition, and that feels that something precious inside us is living and dying in futility. In truth, seen only from the perspective of this world, much of what is precious, unique and rich, seemingly is living and dying in futility. Only a rare few achieve satisfying self-expression and recognition.

There's a certain martyrdom in this. Iris Murdoch once said: "Art has its martyrs, not the least of which are those who have preserved their silence." Lack of self-expression, whether chosen or imposed by circumstances, is a real death; but like all deaths it can be understood and appropriated in very different ways.

If it is accepted unhappily as tragic, it leads to bitterness and a broken spirit. If, however, it is understood and appropriated in faith as an invitation to be a hidden cell inside the Body of Christ and the human family, to anonymously provide sustenance and health to the overall body, it can lead to restfulness, gratitude, and sense of significance that lays the axe to the roots of our frustration, disappointment, depression, and bitterness.

I say this because much of what gives us life and sustains us in our lives has not been provided by the rich and famous, the high achievers, and those to whom history gives credit. As George Eliot points out, we don't need to do great things that leave a big mark in human history because "the growing good of the world is partly dependent on unhistoric acts; and that things are not so ill with you and me as they might have been is half owing to the number who lived faithfully a hidden life and rest in unvisited tombs."

Well said. History bears this out. I think, for instance, of Therese of Lisieux who lived out her life in obscurity in a little convent tucked away in rural France, who when she died at age twenty-four, was probably known by fewer than one hundred people. In terms of how we assess things in this world she accomplished very little, nothing in terms of outstanding achievement or visible contribution. She entered the convent at age fifteen and spent the years until her early death doing menial things in the laundry, kitchen, and garden inside her obscure convent. The only tangible possession she left behind was a diary, a personal journal with bad spelling, which told the story of her family, her upbringing, and what she experienced during her last months in palliative care as she faced death.

But what she did leave behind is something that has made her a figure who is now renowned around the world, both inside and outside of faith circles. Her little private journal, The Story of a Soul, has touched millions of lives, despite its bad spelling (which had to be corrected by her sisters after her death).

What gives her little journal its unique power to touch hearts is that it chronicles what was happening inside the privacy of her own soul during all those years when she was hidden away and unknown, as child and as a nun. What she records in the story of her soul is that she, fully aware of her own uniqueness and preciousness, could unbegrudgingly give that all over in faith because she trusted that her gifts and talents were working silently (and powerfully) inside a mystical (though real, organic) body, the Body of Christ and of humanity. She understood herself as a cell inside a living body, giving over what was precious and unique inside her for the good of the world.

Anonymity offers us this invitation. There is no greater work of art that one can give to the world.

Jesus said as much. He told us to do our good deeds in secret and not let our left hand (and our neighbors and the world) know what our right hand is doing.
