Background on the Gospel Reading

The story of the cleansing of the Temple is found in all four Gospels. In Matthew, Mark, and Luke, Jesus is upset with the deceitful practices of the vendors and expels them for that reason. But in John, Jesus' authority is contrasted with the authority of the Temple cult and is a criticism of the cult itself.

The story is composed of two parts, Jesus' action in the Temple and Jesus' predictions about the Temple's destruction. The time of year is the sacred feast of Passover. If the many pilgrims to Jerusalem during Passover were to have animals for the sacrificial rituals of the feast, it was necessary to sell cattle in the Temple and to change the unclean Roman money. By denouncing this, Jesus is cutting to the core of the Temple cult.

The story is really about Jesus' fate, not the Temple's fate, revealing that Jesus, not the Temple, is the locus of God's presence on earth. As they often do in John, the Jews misunderstand Jesus' words. This gives John the chance to explicitly state his point. Although this is the beginning of his ministry, Jesus is already speaking of his coming death and Resurrection.

John intentionally integrates a post-Resurrection perspective into the Gospel narrative. The statement that concludes this passage uses the fact of the Resurrection to prove the point of Jesus' words. Believers need to remember the words and actions of Jesus and claim them as affirmations of the truths of their faith.

Christians sometimes point to Jesus' anger in this passage as a way to point out Jesus' humanity. But this would miss the powerful point of the entire Gospel, that the Word became flesh. The point is not that Jesus' anger proves he is human. It is that a human being, in his words and actions, can claim the authority of God.

Fiesta de la Dedicación de la Basílica de Letrán en Roma , 9 de noviembre de 2025

Antecedentes sobre la lectura del Evangelio

La historia de la limpieza del Templo se encuentra en los cuatro Evangelios. En Mateo, Marcos y Lucas, Jesús está molesto con las prácticas engañosas de los vendedores y los expulsa por esa razón. Pero en Juan, la autoridad de Jesús contrasta con la autoridad del culto del Templo y es una crítica al culto en sí.

La historia se compone de dos partes, la acción de Jesús en el Templo y las predicciones de Jesús sobre la destrucción del Templo. La época del año es la fiesta sagrada de la Pascua. Si los muchos peregrinos a Jerusalén durante la Pascua tenían animales para los rituales de sacrificio de la fiesta, era necesario vender ganado en el Templo y cambiar el dinero romano impuro. Al denunciar esto, Jesús está cortando el núcleo del culto al Templo.

La historia es realmente sobre el destino de Jesús, no sobre el destino del Templo, revelando que Jesús, no el Templo, es el lugar de la presencia de Dios en la tierra. Como a menudo hacen en Juan, los judíos malinterpretan las palabras de Jesús. Esto le da a John la oportunidad de declarar explícitamente su punto de vista. Aunque este es el comienzo de su ministerio, Jesús ya está hablando de su próxima muerte y resurrección.

Juan integra intencionalmente una perspectiva posterior a la Resurrección en la narrativa del Evangelio. La declaración que concluye este pasaje utiliza el hecho de la Resurrección para probar el punto de las palabras de Jesús. Los creyentes necesitan recordar las palabras y acciones de Jesús y reclamarlas como afirmaciones de las verdades de su fe.

Los cristianos a veces señalan la ira de Jesús en este pasaje como una forma de señalar la humanidad de Jesús. Pero esto pasaría por alto el punto poderoso de todo el Evangelio, que la Palabra se convirtió en carne. El punto no es que la ira de Jesús demuestre que es humano. Es que un ser humano, en sus palabras y acciones, puede reclamar la autoridad de Dios.
