The Anger of Jesus

When Jesus drove the hucksters and money-changers out of the temple, was this the same Jesus who extended the commandment “You shall not kill” to forbid even anger, insults, and interior contempt for others (see Matthew 5:21-26)? Is the Jesus whom we see knocking over tables and driving out animals with a whip the same Jesus who said, “turn the other cheek” and “love your enemies” (Matthew 5:38-48)?

Actually, what Jesus gives us here is an example of how to live out his teaching on anger. As one of the “capital sins,” anger is a source of much evil. But this means abiding, chronic and usually unacknowledged anger which distorts our attitudes and infects our behavior. This happens when we let our anger “grow” in us. In itself, however, anger is just a natural reaction that is part of the human nature God created. There is no fault at all in feeling angry, any more than in feeling hungry or cold or scared. Like every emotion, anger can be put to good uses or bad. In today’s Gospel Jesus shows us how to use anger as an expression of love.

Love seeks union of mind and heart. Love works through communication. Expressing anger can say to another how strongly one feels about something—even about that person. What father who appreciates how beautiful his daughter is could hear her use ugly words and not get angry? Anger that is a revelation of one’s own heart for the sake of evoking a beautiful response from another’s heart is love. Anger which just tries to silence—or to kill—another is not. Anger can energize us, bring us to life and empower us to act. If the expression of our anger brings others to life in a good way, and aims at this, it is love.

To act out of anger in a way that kills something in another which could have blossomed into life is bad.

Jesus’ anger in the temple showed how much he cared about people, and it was directed to bringing about a change of heart in those to whom he expressed it. Jesus did not insult the merchants. By quoting Scripture to them he acknowledged their faith and the bond he had with them as fellow Jews (see Matthew 21:13; Mark

NOVEMBER 9, 2025

DEDICATION OF THE LATERAN BASILICA

Ezekiel 47:1-2, 8-9, 12; 1 Corinthians 3:9c-11, 16-17; John 2:13-22

11:17). By saying they had turned God’s house into a “den of thieves” he was not saying they were bad people but reminding them of how good they were called to be. When a mother tells her son his room “looks like a pigpen” she is saying precisely that he is not a pig and should not live like one. By expressing the anger he felt, Jesus was trying to show people what they were doing and how bad it was, so that they would change.

Jesus did no violence, either to persons or property. He knocked over tables full of money—which would not break. He picked up some pieces of rope and used them to drive out animals. He told the dove sellers to take their birds outside, but he did not release the doves to fly away. The violent expression of his feelings was for the sake of communication; it was not violence directed against anyone.

Jesus tried by his gesture in the temple to bring his enemies to truth, as he taught in the Sermon on the Mount (see Matthew 5:24-25). It was not going to work, and when it didn’t, he did not fight but let them “destroy the temple” of his body on the cross (see John 2:18-22). Jesus did not use anger to destroy others, but in the hope of bringing others to life, even when he knew it would lead to his own death.

Jesus was not a man who stood meekly by and let evil go unchallenged. He did not use violence to overcome evil, but he did take forceful measures against it. What he used above all was the testimony of the truth, to which he gave force through the passionate expression of his own feelings. The gentleness and respectful love of enemies he teaches is not an excuse to stand by and do nothing about evil. It is a call to risk speaking the truth and even to accept our death in an effort to bring people together in unity, love and peace.

REFLECTING ON THIS WEEK'S GOSPELS

Thirty-Second Week of the Year

Pray daily: Lord, you are the light of the world. And you have kindled your light within my heart. I want to see with your eyes, know with your mind, respond with your heart, and live your life to the full. Enlighten me, and act in me without reserve. Amen.

Monday: Luke 17:1-6: The Lord said, “If you have faith the size of a mustard seed, you would say to this mulberry tree, ‘Be uprooted and planted in the sea,’ and it would obey you.” Is your faith just the static fact of believing a certain number of things, or is it a dynamic, active power working in you? How have you experienced your faith as a power?

Tuesday: Luke 17:7-10: Jesus said, “When you have done all you have been commanded, say, ‘We are unprofitable servants; we have done what we were obliged to do.’” Does your faith make you the “light of the world” when you just keep the laws accepted by Christians, or when it lets you see things differently in the light of Christ? Do you consciously try to do this?

Wednesday: Luke 17:11-19: Jesus said to the leper who was cured, “Stand up and go; your faith has saved you.” In practice, what experiences have you had of your faith saving you from something? Has it saved you from making mistakes? From continuing in a destructive or distorted path? From mediocrity? From experiencing meaninglessness in life?

Thursday: Luke 17:20-25: Once Jesus was asked by the Pharisees when the kingdom of God was coming, and he answered, “The kingdom of God is not coming with things that can be observed; nor will they say, ‘Look, here it is!’ or ‘There it is!’ For, in fact, the kingdom of God is among you.” Do you get more excited by new private revelations than by reading the revelation always available to you in Scripture? Do you run to the newest devotions instead of seeking Christ in a steady use of Mass and the other sacraments?

Friday: Luke 17:26-37: Jesus said, “Just as it was in the days of Lot: they were eating, drinking, buying, selling, planting and building, but on the day that Lot left Sodom, it rained fire and sulfur from heaven and destroyed all of them—it will be like that on the day that the Son of Man is revealed.” If Jesus came today, would he find you doing just what he described? If you knew he were coming, not today, but some time this year, what more would you be doing? When is he, in fact, coming for you personally?

Saturday: Luke 18:1-8: Jesus exclaimed, “But when the Son of Man comes, will he find faith on earth?” What about your faith? Is it a consolation to Jesus? Is it bearing the fruits he desires? Is it an active force in your life leading you to know him more deeply and serve him more constantly?

LIVING THIS WEEK'S GOSPELS

As Christian: Write three adjectives that best describe to you the Jesus you have experienced in faith.

As Disciple: Discipleship (theology) is “faith seeking understanding.” Make a list of what is available to help you understand better what you believe. Which means promises to be most helpful?

As Prophet: Consciously choose each day to do one thing which simply doesn’t make sense without faith.

As Priest: Participate in the Mass one day this week and in faith offer up with Jesus on the cross the needs of your friends, your times, your world. Do this as sharing consciously in his priesthood.

As King: Express in action your faith that Jesus has “overcome the world” by trying to change one thing that needs to be changed at home, at work, neighborhood, or in your social life.
