In the Gospel, people are hired to work in a vineyard, a field where they grow grapes.
Draw people picking the grapes.

Gospel

In this parable, people are jealous because a landowner is giving everyone the same payment at the end of the day. Jesus reminds us that everyone will go to heaven if they believe in Him. It's never too late to believe in God.

The Archangels

Sts. Michael, Gabriel, and Raphael are the only three angels mentioned by name in the Scriptures, and they all belong to the same choir of angels: The archangels. From St. Dionysius and St. Gregory the Great, we learn that there are nine choirs of angels, which are gathered into three sets of three.

THE NINE CHOIRS OF ANGELS, ACCORDING TO THE ANGELIC DOCTOR

St. Thomas Aquinas, who is called the Angelic Doctor for his study of angels, unites the reasoning of St. Gregory the Great with that of St. Denys and thereby lists the angels in three orders, or spheres, of three, like so:

First Sphere	Second Sphere	Third Sphere
1. Seraphim	4. Dominions	7. Principalities
2. Cherubim	5. Virtues	8. Archangels
3. Thrones	6. Powers	9. Angels

St. Thomas points out that each angel fulfills his own proper office, but as the angels are far above our natural human knowledge, we cannot know of the distinctions among the angels by our own powers. Thus, because our knowledge of the angels is imperfect, we can only distinguish among them in a general way—and hence, we recognize the angels according to the nine choirs. These choirs designate the offices of the angels and are only approximations to the reality.

ARCHANGELS

It is worth noting that St. Thomas Aquinas (following both St. Gregory and St. Denys) places the archangels in the lowest sphere and at the second lowest choir of angels. The archangels are, in fact, superior only to the angels. This may be surprising to some—for it means that Raphael, Gabriel and even Michael are not among the greatest angels.

However, if St. Michael and the other archangels are toward the bottom of the choirs, we may wonder why it is that they are called "arch"-angels. Why is St. Michael, in particular, called the "prince" if he is toward the bottom?

"The "Archangels," according to Dionysius, are between the Principalities and the Angels... A medium compared to one extreme seems like the other, as participating in the nature of both extremes; thus tepid seems cold compared to hot, and hot compared to cold. So the "Archangels" are called the "angel princes"; forasmuch as they are princes as regards the "Angels," and angels as regards the Principalities. But according to Gregory, they are called "Archangels," because they preside over the one order of the "Angels"; as it were, announcing grater things: and the Principalities are so called as presiding over all the heavenly Virtues who fulfil the Divine commands." (ST I, q.108, a.5, ad 4)

Thus, the archangels are rightly called "arch" insofar as they are above the angels—hence, they are "arch" ANGELS and not "arch" PRINCIPALITIES or "arch" SERAPHIM. Below the others, archangels still rule over the choir of angels as princes. Further, we point out that it is primarily the angels and the archangels who are sent to men as messengers—thus, from the perspective of salvation history, the archangels are the greatest princes of angels whom men encounter.

ST. MICHAEL, THE PRINCE OF THE HEAVENLY HOSTS

We see therefore that it is possible to call St. Michael the prince of the heavenly hosts without claiming that he is in a choir above the choir of the archangels. If we recall that the heavenly hosts would probably only include the archangels and the angels (since the other choirs are directed towards higher works), then it is very much possible that Michael could be the prince of the army of heaven and yet be below the seraphim, cherubim, et alia. Indeed, there is something of the divine plan revealed in this: The Lord constantly favors the lowly over the great.

Thus, as Lucifer was from the choir of the seraphim, it is fitting that he should be defeated by one of the lowest ruling angels. St. Michael defeated Satan's pride and power through his own humility and meekness.

Even among the angels, our good God casts down the mighty from their thrones, and raises up the lowly.

THE TWENTY-FIFTH SUNDAY OF ORDINARY TIME

On the Gospel of this day ; St. Matthew , 20 :1-16a.

The call to the vineyard (to the Church), through God's gift of faith and the sacrament of baptism, is a gift for which we can never sufficiently thank God. If we remain in the vineyard and labor honestly, that is, if we cooperate with the actual graces God is continually giving us, we are assured of reaching heaven when our earthly days are ended. The work we have to do in God's vineyard is the fulfilling of the duties of our state in life. By carrying out these duties faithfully and honestly we are doing the will of God and earning heaven. The greater part of our day and indeed of our life, will be taken up with tasks of themselves worldly, but these tasks when done in the state of grace and with the intention of honoring God, have a supernatural value. For this we have to thank God for His goodness and generosity.

He could have made the attainment of heaven so much more difficult. He could have demanded extraordinary mortifications and renunciations and the reward (heaven) would still be exceedingly great. Instead He allows us to live our everyday life, to enjoy the love and friendship of our family and friends, to satisfy the natural desires of our bodies, within the commandments, and yet to merit a supernatural reward while so doing. As He tells us through St. Paul: "whether you eat or drink or whatever else you do, do all to the glory of God (1 Cor. 10 : 31)."

Looking back on our past life, how many years have we really given to God since we came to the use of reason? Those school years, the time spent learning a trade or profession, the weeks, months, years working in an office or factory or farm, the hours among the pots and pans in the kitchen — have we earned some credit in heaven for all of this, or is it all crossed off our pay sheet through lack of right intention or through sin?

If so, those years are lost to us. We were "idle" all that time. Today's parable, however, should give us new hope and courage. It may be the sixth or the ninth or even the eleventh hour of our life but we can still earn heaven if we listen to God's call and set to work diligently in His vineyard. If we put our conscience right with God today and resolve to be loyal to Him from now on He will be as generous to us, as the parable promises.
