"The great feast of Corpus Christi, which the Church celebrates this weekend, calls us to greater love and adoration for the true presence of Jesus Christ among us and most especially in the Eucharist we receive at Mass. Since the beginning of the Church, holy men and women have given their lives with the belief and trust that Christ is truly present in the Eucharist. Let us remember and pray for today all holy men and women who are being persecuted and killed for their faith in Christ in our own time in different parts of the world. As Christ fed those gathered to hear His words with bread and fish in today's Gospel, so also does he feed the community gathered here today with His body and blood. Jesus Christ, whom we receive in the Eucharist, is always ready to welcome us home with open arms and we are privileged to receive this incredible gift of Christ Himself. As we say in the prayer before Communion, "Lord, I am not worthy to receive you." Christ does not require us to be worthy of Him, He has humbled himself and embraced our broken humanity so that we might be saved and live forever with Him in heaven. This week, let us challenge ourselves to be ever faithful to Christ present in the Eucharist and to strive to honor the sacrifice of His life with our own lives filled with adoration and reverence. May God bless you this week!
