Fifteenth Sunday in Ordinary Time

"Nothing in Our Hands"

Readings

Am 7:12-15 / Eph 1:3-14 / Mk 6:7-13

The twelve went out with nothing more than a companion, the clothes on their backs and the fire in their hearts. Mark tells us that they preached "repentance," that's the metanoia message that invites people to believe in God's alternative to the reality they see around them. It's the message that had caught them in Jesus' net in the first place and the only thing they had to offer the people they were going out to meet.

Mark doesn't tell us much more about their mission — there was no script except to repeat what they had learned from being with Jesus. Accentuating the simplicity of their approach, Jesus told them to stay with the first people who received them rather than to move from place to place. Then, perhaps more realistically, he told them that if a place refused to welcome or listen to them, they should act as if it were a pagan country and shake its dust off them before returning to the Holy Land.

Scripture scholar and Jesuit Fr. Silvano Fausti comments on the disciples' mission saying that they were sent without anything because when we have things, that is what we think we can give. When we have nothing in our hands or pack, we can only give what comes from inside us. Perhaps that's the symbolic import of Jesus' sharing of his power over the demons. All that the disciples had to give was what they had received from Jesus, qualities that can't be contained in a sack or carried on a belt.

Today's readings invite us to look at our own call as disciples. Most real prophets (Isaiah excepted) don't choose that profession but find themselves called or cajoled into it. As they put their vocation into practice, they discover that the call to serve others becomes their unique way of entering into communion with God and their own people. The calling draws more out of them than they ever believed they could accomplish. Are we ready to get caught up in that dynamic?

RELIGIOUS EDUCATION AND YOUTH MINISTRY

WORKERS NEEDED

Creating a Royal Palace and Garden inside the Parish Hall is a huge project and volunteers are needed to donate their time and expertise to construct our VBS set. We have July 19th through the 28th to build our palace and marketplace. Our set designer this year is a local teen artist who painted our mountain last year and designed the set for last year's program. We are grateful to have Mackenzie back again this year!

DECORATORS NEEDED JULY 25-28TH

We also need help hanging up posters and greenery outside the palace around the rooms being used for VBS. Each tent in our marketplace will need to be decorated according to the master plan and in the most functional way for kids to make their crafts while working with volunteers in small groups. If you are available anytime during the hours of 9:00 AM to 3:00 PM please call the office or just stop by the Hall. We also could use some sewing help with costumes. If you like to sew call the Office to volunteer. Thanks!

In just a few weeks, we're taking a journey back to ancient Babylon—where you'll get to talk to Daniel and find out what it was like to be a captive in a strange country!
