SECOND SUNDAY OF EASTER

Easter Thanks

We spent Holy Week and the Easter Triduum seeking the peace and life of Christ. Having experienced that in our liturgies, it is time this weekend to give thanks to each of you for everything you did to make Easter such a beautiful expression of our faith.

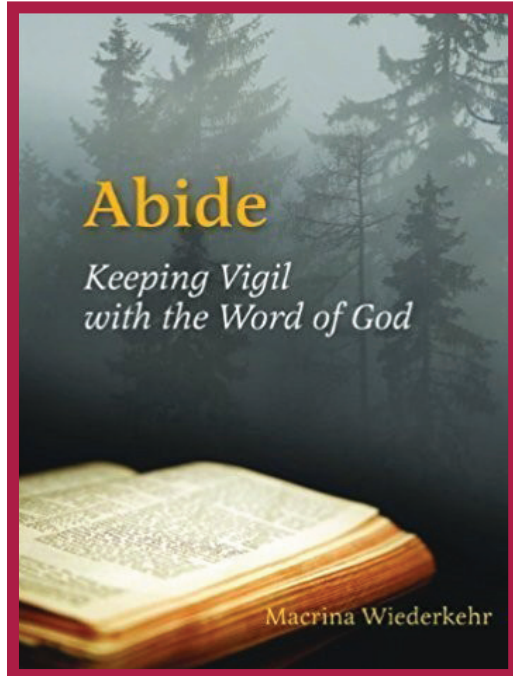

Most importantly, thank you for your faith in God which brought you here for our liturgies. Even with the crowds, you were good-natured and joyful. Your generosity in the Easter collection will help us to continue with our mission of meeting your needs and bringing God's love to our parishioners as well as to those in need beyond our parish.

Thank you to our staff for their incredibly hard work which was evident in so many ways. Thanks as well to our parishioners who volunteered to help make Holy Week and Easter incredibly special. The physical appearance of our building and grounds, the beautiful flowers, the work of our adult choirs, children's choirs, handbell choirs, the liturgical ministers, readers and so many other things which were necessary in order for Holy Week and Easter to seem to happen without effort, when, in fact, it was an extraordinary effort. Easter Thanks to all.

U.S. SISTERS AGAINST TRAFFICKING

UNITED NATIONS (CNS) -- Mely Lenario quietly described her harrowing journey from ambitious, naive rural girl trafficked to hopeless, drug-fueled urban prostitute, through slow rehabilitation to a new life as an outreach worker. After she finished her story, hundreds of people in a U.N. conference room jumped to their feet in a sustained ovation.

As an 8-year-old, Lenario was abused by her stepfather in the Philippines. He threatened her at knife point after she watched him rape her sister. When she confronted her mother and neighbors about it, she was placed into a Jesuit-run orphanage for seven years. As a teen, she accepted an offer of work and a free education from an elegant woman visitor who arranged transportation to Cebu, a city distant from her hometown. In Cebu, she was prostituted and forced to use drugs to stay awake all night and improve the glum demeanor that discouraged customers. Lenario begged for release but was told she had to pay for the transportation and other expenses incurred by her traffickers. "I felt hopeless and worthless. I felt already ruined," Lenario said.

Ultimately, she met compassionate women and men religious who introduced her to the Good Shepherd Welcome House in Cebu. With their help and five years of effort, she overcame her drug habit, finished high school and trained to be a nurse's aide. "I had to learn how to forgive myself and the people who caused me pain," she said.

Lenario now studies social work and serves as an outreach counselor to trafficked women and girls at the Good Shepherd Welcome House. "I want to give them hope. I want to be an inspiration and give voice to all the abused women out there. I want to show them that if I could change my life, they can too," she said.

Religious sisters are "going to the existential peripheries" to do heroic work, but they cannot do it alone, Msgr. Grysa continued. Trafficking is "a global phenomenon that exceeds the competence of any one community or country. To eliminate it, we need a mobilization comparable in size to that of the phenomenon itself."
