Oh, by the way,

This week-end, the Universal Catholic Church celebrates the Solemnity of Pentecost. The Apostles were the 'first Confirmation class' receiving the gifts of the Holy Spirit which are: wisdom, understanding, counsel, fortitude, knowledge, piety, and fear of the Lord.

According to the Catechism of the Catholic Church (CCC), these gifts "complete and perfect the virtues of those who receive them."

- Wisdom is considered the first and the greatest of the gifts. It acts upon both the intellect and the will. According to St. Bernard, it both illumines the mind and instills an attraction to the divine. Adolphe Tanquerey OP explained the difference between the gift of wisdom and that of understanding: "The latter is a view taken by the mind, while the former is an experience undergone by the heart; one is light, the other love, and so they unite and complete one another." A wise and loving heart is the perfection of the theological virtue of charity.
- Understanding helps one relate all truths to one's supernatural purpose; it further illuminates one's understanding of Sacred Scripture; and it assists us to understand the significance of religious ritual. This all gives us a profound appreciation for God's providence.
- Counsel functions as a sort of supernatural intuition, to enable a person to judge promptly and rightly, especially in difficult situations. It perfects the cardinal virtue of prudence. While prudence operates in accord with reason as enlightened by faith, the gift of counsel operates under the guidance of the Holy Spirit to illuminate the will of God.
- Fortitude is often identified with courage, but Aquinas takes its meaning to also encompass endurance. Joseph J. Rickaby describes it as a willingness to stand up for what is right in the sight of God, even if it means accepting rejection, verbal abuse, or physical harm. The gift of fortitude allows people the firmness of mind that is required both in doing good and in enduring evil. It is the perfection of the cardinal virtue of the same name.
- Knowledge: The gift of knowledge allows one, as far as is humanly possible, to see things from God's perspective. It "allows us to perceive the greatness of God and his love for his creatures" through creation.
- Piety accords with reverence. A person with reverence recognizes his total reliance on God and comes before God with humility, trust, and love. Thomas Aquinas says that piety perfects the virtue of religion, which is an aspect of the virtue of justice, in that it accords to God that which is due to God. In a series of talks on the Gifts of the Holy Spirit, Pope Francis said that piety is a recognition of "our belonging to God, our deep bond with him, a relationship that gives meaning to our whole life and keeps us resolute, in communion with him, even during the most difficult and troubled moments". Francis goes on: "Piety is not mere outward religiosity; it is that genuine religious spirit which makes us turn to the Father as his children and to grow in our love for others, seeing them as our brothers and sisters."

- Fear of the Lord is akin to wonder (or awe). With the gift of fear of the Lord, one is made aware of the glory and majesty of God. At a June 2014 general audience Pope Francis said that it "is no servile fear, but rather a joyful awareness of God's grandeur and a grateful realization that only in him do our hearts find true peace". A person with wonder and awe knows that God is the perfection of all one desires. This gift is described by Aquinas as a fear of separating oneself from God. He describes the gift as a "filial fear," like a child's fear of offending his father, rather than a "servile fear," that is, a fear of punishment. Fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom. It is the perfection of the theological virtue of hope.

With Pentecost, the Church closes Easter Time. We return to Ordinary Time Monday. As Ordinary Time resumes, we revert to Niceno-Constantinopolitan Creed for week-end celebrations in place of the Apostles' Creed. As you previously read, the Rite of Sprinkling, specific to Sundays of Easter, will be exchanged for the regular options in the Penitential Act.

Uniting in Heart

On June 25, 26 and 27, the Diocese of Lafayette-in-Indiana will be sharing the Diocesan Uniting in Heart 2030 Pastoral Plan. There will be one presentation in each Deanery. Your attendance at your deanery meeting is crucial to the future of our diocese. As previously mentioned, the Logansport Deanery gathering is Thursday, 26 June, 2:00 p.m., All Saints, Logansport.

Our June Lazarus collection will be next weekend, June 15 & 16. Requests from the Pulaski County Food Pantry include the following items: 18 Oz containers peanut butter, 18 oz containers of jelly, hamburger helpers, noodles, elbow macaroni, instant mashed potatoes, and variety of soups. They also are in need of shampoo and feminine hygiene products.

Thought: with children out of school, more mouths to feed at home daily. Please be generous. Thank you!
