November 13

From the Desk of Fr. Joe Zabinski

St. Albert the Great, Bishop & Doctor

1206-1280 | Patron Saint of Natural Scientists | November 15

He knew everything, taught Aquinas, and put his complex mind at the Church's service.

St. Francis de Sales wrote that the knowledge of the priest is the eighth Sacrament of the Church. If that is true, then today's saint was a sacrament unto himself. There was little that St. Albert did not know and little that he did not teach. His mastery of all the branches of knowledge of his age was so manifest that he was called "The Great" and the "Universal Doctor."

Albert was born in Germany and educated in Italy. During his university studies, he was introduced to the recently founded Dominican Order and joined their brotherhood. While continuing his long course of formal studies, Albert was sent by his superiors to teach in Germany. He spent 20 years as a professor in various religious houses and universities until he finally obtained his degree and began to teach as a master in 1248. His most famous student was the Italian Dominican Thomas Aquinas, whose rare intellectual gifts Albert recognized and cultivated. Albert was also made the Prior of a Dominican Province in Germany, was a personal theologian and canonist to the Pope, preached a Crusade in Germany, and was appointed the Bishop of Regensburg for less than two years before resigning. Albert was neither ruthless nor politically minded, and the complex web of elites who had interests in his diocese required a bishop to display a sensitivity to power relationships which was not among Albert's skills.

After his short time as a diocesan bishop, Albert spent the rest of his life teaching in Cologne, punctuated by travels to the Second Council of Lyon in 1274 and to Paris in 1277 to defend Aquinas from his theological enemies. Albert's complete works total 83 volumes on virtually every field of knowledge known to his age: scripture, philosophy, astronomy, physics, mathematics, theology, spirituality, mineralogy, chemistry, zoology, biology, justice, and law. Albert's assiduous study of animals, plants, and nature was groundbreaking, and he debunked reigning myths about various natural phenomena through close personal observation. He devoured all the works of Aristotle and organized and distilled their content for his students, re-introducing the great Greek philosopher to the Western world forever and always. This life-long project of philosophical commentary was instrumental in grounding subsequent Catholic theological research on a wide and sturdy platform of critical thinking, which has been a hallmark of Catholic intellectual life ever since.

Albert's comprehensive approach to all knowledge contributed to the flourishing of the nascent 12-century institutions of learning known as universities. The "uni" in university implied that all knowledge was centered around one core knowledge—that of God and His Truth. The modern understanding is that a "multiversity" is merely an administrative forum in which numerous branches of knowledge spread out in pursuit of their separate truths unhinged from any central focus or purpose.

St. Albert's prodigious mind never ceased to be curious. Every bit of knowledge which he culled led him to gather even more. His encyclopedic knowledge embraced reality itself as one sustained instance of God loving the world. No bifurcation, no subcategories, no "my truth" and no "your truth." God was real and God was... Continued on Page VI

SEEKING THE LORD IN PRAYER

Reflect, today, upon whether or not you daily seek out and hear God speaking to you in the depths of your heart. Listen closely and attentively. Learn His voice and seek to hear Him speak, even through others. Remain faithful to God speaking within you. It is there, more than any other place, that He will lead you.

Lord, give me the grace to know and hear Your voice. I choose You above all things and desire to know You more clearly. May I follow You now and always in my life and may I never be deceived by the many false prophets of our day and age. Jesus, I trust in You!
