Friendship

St. Paul was collaborating with the people of Corinth which was one of the largest areas to be exposed to Christianity. Their lives were governed by Rome and the policies of control are sadistic.

Paul was following the teaching of Christ. Knowledge and faith were the key to growth. That is also true today. To follow Jesus, we must know Him and his directives. In order to live in this world today, we must be aware of His guidelines. Paul's approach was to learn about Jesus' teaching with study, endurance, patience, and love and to spread the word to others. Those who become familiar with his teaching will pass it on but not by shouting but by example. It is like training someone to do something for the first time. It can be difficult at first but the better you teach the more they learn. Paul was teaching the Corinthians to use love as an instrument to bring them to Jesus. To move a country from fear of others to loving all people would seem easy but for the Corinthians there were consequences. There was the government who wanted total control and this format did not give them the control they wanted.

St. Paul did not give up and neither should we. Today there are things that we cannot give up. We need to show how Jesus's plan of love works. I believe that we can start with knowledge of the sacrifices Jesus made for us. When we think of the courage and love he showed for us we have a starting point. Keep that in mind when we have problems.

The best way to show our love for each other is to be kind and share our love with others.

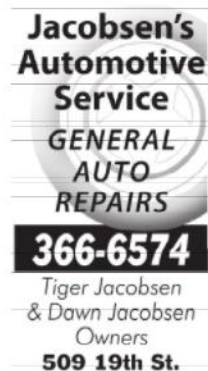

Fr. Gary received the St. Vincent Award for his support of our St. Vincent de Paul Conference. He received the award at the 2024 Love & Service Gala for the St. Vincent de Paul New Orleans region on Friday, June 21st.
