Living in the Spirit

I'll never forget the night we brought our first child home from the hospital. I'd laid our daughter down in her bassinet a few feet away from our bed and went to sleep, exhausted, while my husband watched over her. When I woke a few hours later, Greg was still watching. "Have you slept?" I whispered. "No," he said. When I gave him 'the look' he said, "I just want to make sure she's breathing." After I gently pointed out (without hardly laughing at all) that not ever sleeping again was probably not a practical plan for the future, he settled for moving the bassinet right next to the bed where he could check her breathing every time he woke up.

While Father's Day is, technically speaking, a secular celebration, for we who are believers it can't help but also be a religious one. It evokes for us the loving, forgiving, tender Father that Jesus presents us with in his teaching. For those who have had good fathers, that human love is an echo and a practical example of God's fatherly love. And for those whose fathers fell short, Jesus gives us a healing corrective in the Gospels, God our Father who loves us without condition or limit. The Father who knows and loves us so well that, "even all the hairs of your head are counted," the one who watches us breathe.

We've got our celebrations stacked one on top of another this weekend. In addition to being Father's Day, today is also Juneteenth. As a Federal holiday Juneteenth is only one year old, but celebrations date back to June 19th, 1865 when the news of emancipation (declared two years earlier) was brought to the last enslaved Black Americans in Texas. Its infancy as a national celebration is testament to its necessity. In their 2018 letter "Open Wide our Hearts" the U.S. Bishops declared, "racism still profoundly affects our culture, and it has no place in the Christian heart... The persistence of the evil of racism is why we are writing this letter now." Fitting that this aligns with the Church's observance of the Solemnity of the Most Holy Body and Blood of Christ. The older name for today's feast is Corpus Christi, Latin for the Body of Christ. Today's reading from 1 Corinthians comes immediately after Paul's reminder to that community that at the Eucharistic table there is to be no division. All are equal. We are one.

Let me close with a sincere thank you. I've only been here a few weeks but the very warm welcome from every single person I've encountered so far--from the office staff, from volunteers, and from parishioners--has made me feel right at home. My work at STM/OLQP will involve Liturgy and Youth and Young Adult Ministry. Look for news in the coming weeks about gatherings for young people, a chance to meet and connect, and some listening sessions I'll be holding for parents of teens and tweens to share hopes and concerns. Though you heard a lot about my ministry background in last week's bulletin I'll add a bit of the personal here. My husband Greg and I have four grown children (two boys, two girls) and one very adorable grandson. We live near Ellison Park with our two sons and a giant overly-friendly golden retriever/lab mix named Samwise. One daughter lives in Richmond, VA and the other is here in town. I'm so looking forward to getting to know each of you! Please introduce yourself if you haven't already and thank you again for the incredible welcome!

Peace, Nora

LAUDATO SI'
 Action Platform

The Laudato Si' Action Platform is a worldwide initiative calling Catholics to take seriously our moral obligation to protect the Earth, our fellow humans, and all other species from climate change. One part of that call is to engage in ecological economics. Installing energy efficient appliances and solar panels costs money. Choosing to spend our money on items that help to protect the planet might mean we have less money for other things. What are we willing to sacrifice in order to live more ecologically? It's a moral question we should consider as part of our faith. See www.laudatosiactionplatform.org

Heavenly Father,
 We come before You to praise You and to thank You for the great gift of the family.
 We pray to You for all families
 consecrated by the Sacrament of Matrimony.
 May they rediscover each day the grace they have received,
 and as small domestic Churches,
 may they know how to witness to your Presence
 and to the love with which Christ loves the Church.
 We pray to You for all families faced with difficulty and suffering caused by illness or circumstances of which only You know.
 Sustain them and make them aware of the path to holiness upon which You call them,
 so that they might experience your infinite Mercy
 and find new ways to grow in love.
 We pray to You for children and young people:
 may they encounter You and respond joyfully
 to the vocation You have in mind for them;
 We pray for parents and grandparents: may they be aware that they are signs of the fatherhood and motherhood of God in caring for the children who, in body and spirit, You entrust to them;
 for the experience of fraternity that the family can give to the world.
 Lord, grant that each family
 might live their specific vocation to holiness in the Church as a call to become missionary disciples, in the service of life and peace,
 in communion with our priests,
 religious, and all vocations in the Church.
 Bless the World Meeting of Families.
 Amen.

Corner The story of the Loaves and Fishes shows us that when you share what you have, even if it doesn't seem like that much, miracles can happen! Do not think that your gift is too small or insignificant! Each of us has a role in God's plan; you just need to place your trust in the Lord. Nothing is impossible with God. You may be the answer to someone else's prayer.
