From the Desk of Fr. Chris

"Grant me, O Lord my God, a mind to know you, a heart to seek you, wisdom to find you, conduct pleasing to you, faithful perseverance in waiting for you, and a hope of finally embracing you."

(St. Thomas Aquinas)

This week we celebrate Catholic Schools Week as a Universal Church. This week coincides with several Feast Days of Saints who were known for their work with youth and Catholic Education (St. Thomas Aquinas, St. Angela Merici, St. John Bosco, etc.) We're blessed at St. Anselm to have a Catholic School on campus. This weekend some of our students will share with us their experience of education and formation at St. Anselm School. They'll also share their gratitude with all of you for your support of St. Anselm School, because as we all have experienced, this is a ministry that brings great vibrancy to our parish. On the level of faith, our students regularly participate in the celebration of the Sacraments, daily prayer such as the rosary and their classroom prayers, and devotionals (like leading our parish community in Friday Stations of the Cross during Lent and Eucharistic Adoration). The goal of St. Anselm School isn't just to provide an excellent education, but also the formation of the hearts of our young people in the Catholic faith tradition.

If you don't get a chance to stop by our open house this weekend or perhaps you have more questions about St. Anselm School, Mrs. Therese Rose (Principal) would love to answer your questions or give you a tour. Her contact information is on the front cover of this bulletin.

Recently I had great conversations with both our parish staff and pastoral council about Lent. It's hard to believe that it is right around the corner (just a few weeks away). We have some very exciting plans to help you have a very blessed Lent (both prayer and educational opportunities). Deacon Bob and I preached last year about the 7 Deadly Sins and 7 Lively Virtues during the Sundays of Lent. This year we will be once again highlight a special theme during Lent (hint: it has a lot to do with our annual parish theme "Encounter Christ"). I look forward to sharing more with you as we get closer to Lent.

Know of my Prayers for You,
Fr. Chris

Aquinas' Four Proofs

This week we celebrate the feast day of Saint Thomas Aquinas, one of the greatest minds in the history of the Church. One of Aquinas' greatest works, the Summa Theologiae, contains five proofs for the existence of God. They are the following:

1. The Argument from Motion: This argument points to a source of motion that was not initially acted upon, a movement that never had a beginning, but always was. This source of movement is the one that set all things in motion, and, as such, had to exist prior to and outside the constraints of that which was set in motion.

2. The Argument from Efficient Cause: Similar to the first argument, this one is based on the idea of cause and effect. This time, the cause and effect of Saint Thomas refers to is existence itself. Nothing, he explains, can cause itself to exist. To be the cause of itself, the argument proceeds, the object in question would need to exist prior to its own existence. And because that isn't possible, everything that exists must have been brought into existence by something else. This beginning, or "efficient cause," is referred to by humanity as God.

3. The Argument from Necessary Being: Here, Saint Thomas draws into infinity: if everything that exists had a point in time where it didn't exist, then nothing would exist now, since there would have been nothing to bring something else into existence. This means that something has to exist that has no potential for nonexistence, and something that is necessary in and of itself. This necessary being was not brought into existence, since it has no possibility for nonexistence. It is without beginning and it is the cause of all things that exist.

4. The Argument from Perfection: St. Thomas observes the natural order as having qualities of goodness, truth, nobility, and so on. The things in the natural world are "more" or "less" good, they are "more" or "less" true, and the same with all similar qualities. Every quality has a maximum, to which all things possessing that quality must be compared.

5. The Argument from Design: According to Natural Law, everything without intelligence "act for an end," which is a way of saying that they follow the laws of the natural world. These things act in the same way almost always, unless acted upon by a different force, to achieve the same end. This Intelligent Designer is what Aquinas called God.

Notes from Sister Noel

I know many of you have personal copies of "Magnificat" or "Give Us This Day" prayer books. I have prayed with one or the other over the past few years. Both provide a way to get into the habit of Morning and Evening Prayer, maybe Night Prayer as well. We are praying with the Church in these prayers designated for certain times of the day.

These books contain a variation on the Holy Office said by priests and religious daily. This is truly the prayer of the Church. The format of "Magnificat" and "Give Us This Day" is user-friendly for anyone seeking to grow spiritually. I would be lost without my book, as others who have committed themselves to this form of daily prayer. It has been really beneficial. It has led me to know more of the Saints and Holy Ones who are true models of faith.

If you are a person drawn to our Advent and Lent booklets provided by the parish, you may be one who would find this format as a companion throughout the year. Do I sound like I work for the Company? No, I don't, but I do believe the Company is part of Jesus' Company, the Church.

You know how when you find a good thing, you want to tell others? That's what Jesus wanted His disciples to do...share the Good News. So that's what I am doing. If you want to see a copy, I could make it possible. If someone has "Magnificat", could you provide an old copy for us to share? Let me know.

Ash Wednesday (Feb. 14) is coming soon. Be assured the booklets you have made a part of your Lenten journey in the past will be provided once again from our parish. Keep your eyes and heart open to what the experience will bring.

Sister Noel Marra OSU
