

Art in October is a treat for the students. They enjoy creating whimsical spooktacular projects. However, there is a trick embedded in the lessons: skills. Each project the student completes is geared towards an important objective for their growth.

This month the Kindergarten students continue to astonish me with their excellent skills and behavior. They are working on using shapes to create a meaningful form.

First graders are working on air clay, painting, attention to detail, and fine motor skills.

Second, third, fourth, and fifth graders are working on attention to detail, advanced scissor skills, and blending colors.

Middle school is working structure, lines, and layering of materials.

The art room is a joyful place that offers students room to grow, experiment, and feel successful!
