June 12-13 — Welcome Father Robert E. Nee of Cross Catholic Outreach More than ever, poor families in developing countries are relying on Catholic missions for assistance with food, water, shelter, medical care and spiritual nourishment. That's why the work of Cross Catholic Outreach is so important. It supplies those urgent needs. Father Nee will share some touching stories about the amazing work Catholic missions are accomplishing worldwide. It's an inspiring message every Catholic should hear. Since Cross Catholic Outreach empowers existing Catholic missions, its programs are extremely cost-effective, and the majority of the resources it collects go into program services that help the poorest of the poor around the world. Cross Catholic Outreach was founded to create a meaningful link between parishes in America and the priests and nuns working in the Church overseas in the Caribbean, Africa, Asia, Central and South America. Right now, our world desperately needs the radical compassion Christ lived out. When we help poor families, we show the watching world that our Lord's love remains as powerful and transformative as ever before. To learn more about this organization and its fine work, please visit CrossCatholic.org/outreach or text BLESSINGS to 474747.

JUNE – Month of the Sacred Heart

The kingdom of God is a great mystery. Like the grain that mysteriously grows, sprouts, and yields fruit, and like the tiny mustard seed, so too the kingdom of God mysteriously grows in magnificence and greatness. Through these images and parables, Jesus helps us understand and enter into the mystery of his kingdom.

FIRST READING (Ezekiel 17:22-24) The image of a majestic tree sheltering all the birds of heaven links today's First Reading with one of the parables in today's Gospel. In both cases, the beginnings are small: the tender shoot, the smallest seed. The end result is majestic. In the context of Ezekiel 17, the tender shoot, cultivated by God, is the Davidic monarchy (or, in keeping with the image, David's family tree). The Lord has power over all the trees of the nations.

This reading, chosen to complement today's Gospel, is a promise to God's people. Although they are in exile, God will bring them back and plant them in their own territory. Ezekiel underlines the fact that it is God who will do this, the people can do no more than cooperate with God's grace.

RESPONSORIAL PSALM (Psalm 92:2-3, 13-14, 15-16) The image of the flourishing tree is found in the second and third stanzas of this psalm of thanksgiving. Indeed, God's fidelity to Israel and fulfilment of his promises continues throughout its history.

Praying this psalm, we thank God who is kind and faithful. We remember the promise that God's faithful will grow like the tallest, best trees known to the people of Israel.

SECOND READING (2 Corinthians 5:6-10) Paul's words manifest a deep awareness of the ultimate purpose of life: to be at our heavenly home with the Lord. Paul even longs for this. Do we have the same longing?

Ezekiel taught that all growth comes from God. Now Paul says we walk by faith, not by sight. That is one of the hardest things we are called to do. As a people proud of our independence, we would much prefer to make the roadmap for our lives. Nevertheless, our Christian vocation is to discern God's will, forsaking our own preferences when they impede our Christian journey.

GOSPEL (Mark 4:26-34) The last line of today's Second Reading speaks of the judgment of the Lord, and this motif is continued in the first parable in today's Gospel. The overarching emphasis of both parables, however, is that of the mysterious growth of new life, even though we may be unaware of how it comes about. In the parables, the life that comes to be is the kingdom of God. Its humble, almost unnoticeable beginnings result in fruitful harvest, and its abundant foliage gives shelter to all who would dwell in its shade.

Jesus's seed parables, like the reading from Ezekiel, remind us that the Reign of God is a work of human and divine collaboration. Like the farmer, we must do all we can do to provide the circumstances in which God's reign can grow. When we do, all is ready for God's Spirit to breathe life into our world, be it in the garden or the soul of a people.

REFLECTION The readings today speak of trees, seeds and growth. The texts fit perfectly with the summer season. Did you know that these summer months are the hardest of times for food pantries? Children are no longer receiving hot lunches at school and families have a difficult time making ends meet. Plant an extra row in your garden to share with the local food pantry. Remember those less fortunate and those who produce food in your prayers. And don't forget your local animal shelter too.
