and allot portions to those who had nothing
prepared..." (Nehemiah 8:10)*

Ezra's instructions to the people show us that God does not forbid us from enjoying the good things in life. He wants us to be happy! However, God expects us to be grateful for all that He has given us and to generously share our blessings with those who are in need without expecting anything in return.

THIRD SUNDAY OF THE ORDINARY TIME

Jan. 27, 2019

Readings: Neh 8:2–4a, 5–6, 8–10 • Ps 19:8–10, 15 • 1 Cor 12:12–30 (or 12:12–14, 27) • Lk 1:1–4; 4:14–21

"One of the most consistent challenges that I have faced during my years as a priest is the pervasive attitude among many Christians of "Jesus — Yes; Church — No." People have no problem following Christ, but they often reject the Church, or even have outright disdain for it. The roots of this attitude in our culture run deep — from a distrust of organized religion, to the "privatization" of faith. Even Catholics tend to be impacted by this mentality. Focusing on today's second reading from St. Paul's First Letter to the Corinthians, can help us to explain to our congregations the necessity of the Church.

In this reading, St. Paul deepens the analogy by saying that we are all parts of Christ's body, the Church. This reflects the communal dimension of Christianity. We do not exist as individual believing monads, solely in relation with Christ. Through our relationship with Christ in baptism, we also exist in relation to all other Christians, who are also members of his one Body. All of these different members play different and essential roles in the body. As St. Paul tells us, "the body is not a single part, but many." We exist in communion together as members of Christ's body.

The truth is that our faith only exists and grows while in communion with others. The first reading, and the Gospel, both testify to this reality. In the first reading from the book of Nehemiah, Ezra the priest reads from the law to the people. In the Gospel passage, Jesus reads from the book of the prophet Isaiah to those in attendance at the synagogue. They both read from the Scriptures, and others hear the Word proclaimed to them."
