Bruce's Notes:

To really penetrate this week's Gospel passage (Luke 3:1-6) we need to find a way to make Isaiah's powerful images our own:

A voice of one crying in the desert,

"Prepare the way for the Lord, make straight his paths.

Every valley shall be filled and every mountain and hill shall be made low.

The winding roads shall be made straight, and the rough ways made smooth, and all flesh shall see the salvation of God."

Try seeing the passage as a description of something inward, happening in our own souls. Into our inner "desert" of pain and doubt and confusion comes a voice (the prophet's voice, God's voice!) instructing us to make our inner way ready, ready for the Lord to come to us. That is the same message Jesus keeps bringing us: get ready, be ready, for the coming of the Lord. And Isaiah promises us that the way will be made ready, all the barriers will be cleared away, so that God the Lord can come to us, change us, save us.

How do we fill in our inner valleys, make low our inner mountains, straighten out our winding inner roads, and smooth out the rough places in our souls? We know the answer, though sometimes we don't like it: prayer, learning to listen to the Holy Spirit...in other words, practice.

But is all that hard work ever worth it! This passage from Isaiah is an exultant cry of triumph: spiritual victory is coming! "All flesh shall see the salvation of God." In other words, we, humanity ("all flesh") will see, will experience being saved, being transformed, being in that deeply desired "kingdom of heaven."
