A Letter from God

Hi, I watched you as you got up this morning, and hoped you would talk to me, even if it was just a few words, asking my opinion or help for the day or just to thank me for the new day. But I noticed you were too busy, trying to find the right outfit to wear to work. So, I waited. When you ran around the house getting ready, I was sure there would be a few minutes for you to stop and say hello, but again you were just too busy tending to yourself. At one point you sat in a chair for fifteen minutes thinking about all you had to do today. I was sure you would talk to me then. But when I saw you spring to your feet, you ran to the phone and called a friend to get the latest gossip about your co-workers. I watched as you went to work, frantically darting in and out of traffic. I watched as you hurriedly went to your office, saying "Hi" to your friends and co-workers. I waited patiently all day long. With all your activities I guess you were too busy to say anything to me. I noticed that before lunch you looked around, maybe you felt embarrassed to talk to me, and that's why you wouldn't bow your head. You glanced three or four tables over and you noticed some of your friends talking to me briefly before they ate, but you didn't. That's okay. There was still more time left, and I hoped that you would still find time to talk to me yet. Then you went home. It seemed as if you had lots of things to do. Sometime later, after you completed a few chores, you turned on the television. I waited patiently again as you watched TV and ate your meal, but again you didn't talk to me. Several hours went by, but there was never any time for me. I guess at bedtime, you felt too tired. After you said goodnight to your family you plopped into bed and fell asleep in no time. I wanted you to know that it is okay. You may not realize this, but I am there for you. I've got more patience than you will ever know. I even want to teach you how to be patient with others as well. I love you so much that I wait every day for a nod, prayer or just a thought from you. I love you so much that I simply wait. It is hard to have a one-sided conversation, but don't worry, I'll wait for you. Well, you are about to get up once again. I will wait, with nothing but love for you and a hope that maybe today you will stop long enough from your busy life and give me a moment of your time. Have a nice day!

Your friend, GOD.
