Twenty-second Sunday in Ordinary Time

Fr. Matthew Oakland

In 1893, Senate Bill 730 was introduced by Mr. James Kyle from South Dakota. The bill was one sentence long, and had one simple purpose—to make “Labor’s Holiday” a national holiday, along with Christmas, New Year’s Day, Washington’s Birthday, Memorial Day and Independence Day.

It came at a time of industrialization, as advancements in technology were driving industry. With increased production, prices declined and accessibility increased, but came at the cost of harsher work conditions. Long hours, unsafe working conditions, child labor, low wages, few rights and a host of other problems became more commonplace in centers of industry. This was not just a problem here in the US, however, but around the world. Hence in 1891 Pope Leo XIII wrote one of his great encyclicals - Rerum Novarum: On Capital and Labor. In it he outlined seven interrelated key principles that form the basis of Catholic social teaching.

The Dignity of the Human Person is the principle that we are all created equally, with the breath of life, in the image and likeness of God. As such, persons should be respected and treated in just ways. This includes time off to worship God (no work on Sundays), no long hours, periods of rest, safe and moral working conditions, fair wages and a full day’s work for that pay, no overtaxing by the state, and time to fulfill family obligations.

The Common Good is the principle that we need to strive for the highest good for all people. Our highest good is not material wealth. It refers rather to the development of the person, or virtue, of goodness. In an age when labor and capital were pitted against each other, Pope Leo XIII reminded everyone of their need for each. While individuals might possess the financial ability to undertake a great work, they required laborers to help them. In the same way, laborers relied upon others to provide the factory to work in, the boat to operate, etc. As such, each should concern themselves with the good of other and the good of all, because we need and rely on each other.

Subsidiarity is the principle that governments should not intervene in things that can be taken care of by families or communities. States should serve families, not vis versa. Whatever level is closest to individuals tends to be the one that can serve them the best. Sometimes it isn't possible, which is why the larger entities exist. But the rights and duties of parents, families, communities, etc. should be respected and aided as far as possible.

Participation is the principle that every person in society has gifts and abilities which work not only for their good, but the good of others. It is through these that we reach our highest good, and help others do the same. We were created to live in communion, and so we must participate in the civic community in which we live.

Solidarity is the principle that we have a responsibility to one another—whether members of our family, community, nation or world. Pope Leo XIII reminded us that we have a particular responsibility to protect and care for those who are unable to provide for themselves, who are injured, etc. This duty is not the primary responsibility of the state, though it can assist—but of individuals. He reminded us of the need to cultivate the virtues of charity and generosity. Sometimes the state needs to step in, but it should do so warily so as not to violate the rights of individuals unless necessary (cases of abuse, exploitation, danger, etc.).

The Right of Private Property is the principle that individuals should earn just wages, and through them be able to provide for one’s family. Pope Leo XIII argued against the redistribution of wealth or the confiscation of private property, noting that workers and the poor would suffer the most. Ownership of the land leads to a greater responsibility, pride and care for it. And from this flows a justice that the owner should share in the fruit of his labors. This also allows us to grow in charity (and solidarity) by having the ability to help others and build up their dignity.

Universal Destination of Goods is the principle that God created everything on the earth for the good of all peoples. Everyone should have food and water and the other basic needs and rights of life, such as shelter and clothing.

School Starts on Tuesday!

This past week, Holy Rosary staff attended training provided by Project Lead the Way (PLTW), a nation-wide STEM program that strives to develop in students knowledge, skills, and attitudes to solve complex interdisciplinary real-world problems. This two day training equipped staff with skills to implement PLTW modules in grades K-6 and enhanced our strong STEM plus program. PLTW modules are exciting, engaging, and integrate technology to help our students understand the changing nature of collaborative problem solving. We are excited to bring this to our students this year!

Our Preschool 3's class and Pre-Kindergarten class are now full. We still have two spots in our drop-off Pre-2's class (age 2.5 by August 31st) which meets twice a week, Monday and Fridays from 8:30am-11am.

While we continue to accept applications for 2017/18 in our P2, PreK and grades 1-8, we are already looking forward to 2018/19. We will open our priority application period for parish families and current school families for the 2018/19 school year September 15-November 15. We have our Fall Open House scheduled for Oct. 21 from 10am-1pm.

At Holy Rosary School, tradition and innovation converge to provide leading-edge education that is grounded in the Catholic faith. For more information, contact the School Office: 206-937-7255 or admissions@holyroaryws.org.

Fr. DUNSTAN'S KENYA MINISTRY UPDATE: A Big Thank You...

Hi everyone!

I am glad to let you know that I travelled safely back home. I wish to thank all of you most sincerely for the very warm welcome, and for the wonderful support for my ministry plans.

I particularly wish to thank those individuals and families that took up school fees support for a good number of poor children. I am also deeply grateful to all others who made donations towards helping some of our sub-parishes in their struggles to put up their churches. So far $24,933 has been realised, including $4,100 from St Stephen's Renton (hence $20,833 from Holy Rosary).

School fees 2017/2018 (for orphan kids sponsored from Holy Rosary) takes up $13,060, leaving a balance of $7,773. On Wednesday 23rd August I purchased construction materials for two Churches: St Anthony Okatekok and St Michael Okook, totalling $3,196.

Since the school fees were covered at the beginning of the year, the donations that continue to come in throughout the year will be used to lend support to the construction works in our village churches.

I am also very pleased to mention that a number of individuals and families have picked up some new orphaned and poor kids for school fees support. On behalf of the children, I want to say a big thank you to all of them (their contributions are included in the $20,833).

I also want to most sincerely thank all those of you who donated for specific village Churches, and to the many of you who made contributions with an instruction that I distribute at my own discretion. God bless you all most abundantly.

Sally and Ezekiel; orphan siblings-Amukura Parish.

Leaders of St Michael Okook Subparish joyfully pose with Fr. Dunstan on news of help received from Holy Rosary Parish to support their village church construction.

My next report: the village churches constructions.
