

Deacon's Beacons

Whatever you do, work heartily, as for the Lord and not for men, knowing that from the Lord you will receive the inheritance as your reward. You are serving the Lord Christ.
Colossians 3:23–24

Sometimes we want to separate our faith from our daily lives. But we cannot do that. It is true that most people do not work for the Church but they are always part of the Church. This is not to say that we have to be people who force our faith on others in a setting that is not meant for such sharing. But it does mean that we have to live our faith in a way that gives at least silent testimony to our beliefs. We cannot leave our faith in Church for Sundays only and live however we wish the rest of the week. We come together to worship so that we can be strengthened to take our faith out into the world. The last thing we hear at Mass is the command to go and live the Gospel message. It does not stop at the doors of the Church.

Go raibh síocháin Chríost a bheith in éineacht leat.
