He who dwells in the shelter of the Most High will abide in the shadow of the Almighty.
I will say to the LORD, "My refuge and my fortress, my God, in whom I trust." Psalm 91:1–2

God is our refuge and our fortress against evil. We are unable to stand against evil on our own. We must rely on the strength of God. That is the entire basis for Psalm 91. It is the root of much of the wording of the popular hymn, "On Eagle's Wings." But the core of it is that it will be God Who protects us from harm. Should we expect to have Him protect us from all the evil in the world? No, that would be foolhardy. Even Jesus' disciples were warned that there would be persecutions. But God will protect us from the evil that will endanger our salvation. That is His promise. That is what He will do as long as you seek His protection.
