Do nothing from selfish ambition or conceit, but in humility count others more significant than yourselves. Philippians 2:3

This is very hard. But this is at the core of being a Christian. We have to put the needs of others before our own. Now, that does not mean that we should totally neglect ourselves. We have a right and a responsibility to care for ourselves. But when we see others in need, we must be willing to put our needs aside and help in any way that we can. This also prohibits us from using other people for our own ends. Each person has an innate dignity that must be respected.

Go raibh síocháin Chríost a bheith in éineacht leat.
