Twenty-Seventh Sunday in Ordinary Time

My friend Eileen Love died recently. I hoped to write about her sometime in the next three years, when an appropriate scripture text revealed itself, but it happened already, just a month after her death, with today's scriptures about marriage. I'm glad. I've been wanting to remember her to you.

Eileen and Mike loved each other, and for that reason they left their fathers and mothers, and, clinging to each other, left Long Island for upstart, 1970's Denver. They brought four kind, smart Love sons into the world there. Things got even better when these sons married their warm and brilliant wives. But, of course, Eileen's Love Life went into its highest gear when the adorable, enchanting grandkids started coming (the seventh of whom will no doubt have been born by the time you read this).

Her funny, heartbroken siblings spoke at her services, their New York accents bringing the Irish ancestors right into room. Eileen had a deeply intuitive connection with these ancestors, the great-grandparents who taught their children the faith, which was then passed to their children's children. Before she ever knew she was sick, she published her stunning memoir, In the Shadow of the Cedar, about her mother's family.

Like olive plants around the table, she could imagine all the children of all the people in her family, going back several generations.

I commend her to you now as we consider these readings. Whether married, single, or a vowed Religious, we all had a mother and a father. Pray for them today. And pray for whomever it was who brought you to the faith. And may the Lord bless us all the days of our lives.

How can we honor all our families who came before us?

Vigésimo Séptimo Domingo de Tiempo Ordinario

Mi amiga Eileen Love falleció recientemente. Yo tenía la esperanza de escribir acerca de ella en algún momento en los próximos tres años, cuando se revelara un texto apropiado de las Escrituras, pero ya sucedió, a solo un mes de su muerte, con las Escrituras de hoy acerca del matrimonio. Me alegro. Quería recordárselas.

Eileen y Mike se amaban, y por esa razón dejaron a sus padres y madres y, aferrándose el uno al otro, dejaron Long Island hacia el advenedizo Denver de la década de 1970.

Allí trajeron cuatro amables e inteligentes hijos Love al mundo. Las cosas mejoraron aún más cuando estos hijos se casaron con sus cálidas y brillantes esposas. Pero, por supuesto, La vida de Eileen Love entró en su máxima velocidad cuando los adorables y encantadores nietos comenzaron a llegar (el séptimo de los cuales sin duda habrá nacido para cuando leas esto).

Sus hermanos, divertidos y desconsolados, hablaron en su funeral, y su acento neoyorquino nos recordó a sus antepasados irlandeses. Eileen tenía una conexión profundamente intuitiva con estos antepasados, los bisabuelos que enseñaron la fe a sus hijos, que luego pasó a los hijos de sus hijos. Antes de saber que estaba enferma, publicó sus impresionantes memorias, In the Shadow of the Cedar, sobre la familia de su madre.

Como plantas de olivo alrededor de la mesa, podía imaginarse a todos los hijos de todas las personas de su familia, remontándose a varias generaciones.

Se las encomiendo ahora mientras consideramos estas lecturas. Ya sea casado, soltero o religioso, todos tuvimos una madre y un padre. Ora por ellos hoy. Y ora por quien sea que te haya traído a la fe. Y que el Señor nos bendiga todos los días de nuestra vida.

¿Cómo podemos honrar a todos los familiares que vinieron antes que nosotros?
