Giant King, The

BK 200149 EC, P 32 pp.
Pelley, Kathleen T. © 2003 Child Welfare League of America

People say that Rabbie, the carpenter's son, is a dreamer, but the boy says he works from his heart, carving with wood "not what is, but what could be." Rabbie, it seems, has a gift for breathing in the true Spirit of a person's soul, seeing every "body" as a Temple of the Holy Spirit, and carving his subjects as God designed them to be. When Rabbie goes to sell his carvings in a far-off town, he finds the townspeople besieged by a fierce and destructive giant. The townspeople despair, but Rabbie suggests that if the giant were treated like a king, he might behave like one. When the town's King puts the people (and the giant) to the test, they respond, and the transformation begins. Readers will be charmed by the message of this heart-warming fable: that which is loved will reveal its loveliness.

BK 200170 P 32 pp.
McAdam, Claudia Cangilla © 2021 Ascension Press

Zedekiah and Abigail, two young cousins living in Capernaum at the time of Jesus, argue about everything. They want Jesus to judge which of their families' crops is better — grain or grapes? When they hear Jesus state that he is the "living bread" and that "If anyone eats this bread he will live forever!" they do not understand what he means, but Zedekiah is convinced that grain must be more important. One day, as they prepare for the Passover meal, they hear that Jesus and his apostles will be their special guests. The two children are thrilled that they can give their gifts of bread and wine to Jesus to judge which is better and they can ask Jesus what he meant when he talked about the living bread that they should eat. That evening, as Mary, the mother of Jesus, directs the children toward Jesus with their presents, the actions of Jesus let the children know it did not matter if bread or wine was better since both became the Body and Blood of Jesus that they could now eat and drink.
