DEACON'S CORNER

In this weekend's first reading, God gives us the Ten Commandments. Many feel that they are burdensome and based on force or coercion, but they are really a covenant based on love. The Chosen People broke these commandments left and right. We do as well. By being rooted in the infinite love of God, this covenant serves as a basis for us to live in right relationship with our creator. These commandments help us to see when that relationship is broken so that we can seek reconciliation.

Time and again we hear of self-help books leading the bestsellers list. I suggest that the covenant of the Ten Commandments was the original guide to living a life of peace and love. I encourage you to take some time this week to reflect upon them and the role they play in your life. Then, if you so desire, seek reconciliation. God's infinite love led him to send his son, Jesus, for our salvation. If all we do is see the commandments as burdens and rules, it will lead to unhappiness. Trust in His infinite mercy. He's given us the path to happiness.

Have a blessed Lent!

Deacon Todd
