The Twenty-Fourth Sunday in Ordinary Time

Growing as Disciples of Jesus, Making Disciples For Jesus

St. Matthew, Apostle and Evangelist September 21st

When Jesus began to teach and work miracles, he chose twelve special friends to become his apostles. These men traveled with him, listened to him, and saw him work many miracles. St. Matthew, sometimes called Levi is one of those apostles.

Before Jesus chose him, Matthew was a Jew living in Capernaum, where he collected taxes. Because most tax collectors worked for the Romans, who had conquered the land, they were hated by the Jews. In addition, the tax collectors often cheated people. One day Jesus saw Matthew busy at his work and said, "Follow Me!" Right away Matthew left his job, even though it had given him a lot of money, and followed Jesus.

Matthew once invited Jesus to a dinner where other tax collectors and sinners were gathered. The Bible says that the religious leaders asked why Jesus was eating with sinners. Jesus overheard them and replied, "It is not the healthy who need the doctor, but the sick....I did not come to call the virtuous, but sinners."

After Jesus ascended into heaven the Holy Spirit came, Matthew preached the Good News for many years. Stories say he taught in Persia, Syria, Greece, or Ethiopia.

The Gospel of Matthew was first written in Aramaic for Jewish converts. It has more references to the Old Testament than the other Gospels combined. It tells about Jesus' teachings, sufferings, death, and resurrection. It teaches that Jesus is truly Lord and King, the Messiah foretold by the prophets.

The symbol for Matthew as a Gospel writer is a winged man because his Gospel begins with the human family line of Christ.

Matthew died a martyr for Jesus in Ethiopia.

St. Matthew is the Patron of bankers, accountants, tax-gatherers, and security guards.

St. Matthew, pray that we may not be fooled into thinking money can give us the most important things in life!

MARRIAGE MINUTE— Do you hear what I hear? Being a good listener is a vital part of living our dignity as Christians. Jesus is an attentive and available listener to all who seek him. Because our marriages imitate Christ's love for the Church, we are called to generously listen to our spouse. How do we do this? • Be available: prioritize listening to your spouse by setting aside time each day to connect. • Be attentive: When listening, give full attention through proper posture and eye contact. And shut off distractions like the phone or television. • Be understanding: demonstrate you understood what was said by repeating back in your own words what was communicated to you. • Be prayerful: ask God to help you be a better listener. To grow in this skill, check out the Every Day in Love series: www.archkck.org/everyday.

Reflecting On Sunday's Readings

On October 19, 1984, the Polish state police stopped the car of Fr. Jerzy Popieluszko beat him to death and then threw his bound body into the Vistula River. His crime? Encouraging people to take the side of “good against evil, truth rather than falsehood, and love rather than hatred,” thus resisting the evil of the Polish Communist regime, (adapted from Witness to Hope, by George Weigel). In this week’s Gospel reading Jesus also challenges the disciples to choose whether they will be on God’s side or not, implying that God’s side would entail the suffering, rejection and death of himself, their leader. Can we blame Peter for his response that Jesus should be spared this ordeal? Though our spirit applauds movies like Rocky and Karate Kid, when the hero, beaten and bloodied, arises from the canvas in the final round to overcome the villain’s plummeting, we do not desire this kind of victory for ourselves or the ones we love. We, like Peter, would choose for ourselves and others a life free from pain and suffering, believing that our good intentions for them are synonymous with God’s intentions for them. Jesus on the other hand fully recognized that to fulfill God’s intentions in a world opposed to his rule, would require a life of sacrifice and a willingness not only to suffer but also to die. Consequently, Jesus spelled out precisely, that suffering, rejection and death lay ahead for many of those who would follow him. He knew that people would have to be willing to not put their comfort and well being ahead of God’s mission and will. This was the basis of his call to “come after me.” Knowing people’s aversion to pain and suffering and our preoccupation with self-preservation, why did Jesus invite them to follow him while introducing this scenario? Equally mystifying is why the disciples said yes to Jesus’ call. This week’s Gospel sheds some light on the reasons. First, as we see in Peter’s answer to Jesus’ question, the disciples had moved from a position of simply viewing Jesus as a great teacher to one of knowing that he was in fact the Christ. When this truth grips a person’s heart and mind, as it did the disciples’ hearts, then it becomes the most important thing in the world. Once Jesus has become to us, and for us, the Christ, there is no other alternative, and he is to be followed and pursued regardless of the cost. Second, the promise of suffering, rejection and death included the promise of rising again. Victory was assured regardless of the intensity of the battle. The only way they could lose out in the long run was to choose selfpreservation in the short run. The disciples knew that eternity was at stake and were unwilling to settle for the shortterm solution of peace now, in exchange for forfeiting the long term promise of peace for eternity. When our relationship with Christ and a resurrected life with him becomes so important to us that nothing else matters, we will understand and rejoice in Jesus’ statement that, “Where I am, there will be my disciples also.” Third, the promise that “whoever loses his life for my sake and the gospel will save it” also introduces fulfillment and peace in this life. Throughout history those who have followed Jesus wholeheartedly have discovered joy, peace, contentment, and purpose in the midst of service—a quality of life they would never exchange for the riches, comfort, and security others are striving for and finding unfulfilling. Do you really want a great life, an abundant life? Try following Jesus wholeheartedly. When you look back you will discover that you choose the best. Christ’s call is a call to martyrdom. For most of us it will be a life of martyrdom rather than a death of martyrdom, but we will need to have the same attitude as did Lorenzo Ruiz. This Philippine layman who was martyred in World War II, said, “Even if this body would have a thousand lives, I would let all of them be killed [before you would] force me to turn my back on Christ.”

* From Witness to Hope, by George Weigel.
