MARRIAGE MINUTE– September 30, 2018 How far should we go? In marriage, sin can be easy to spot... in our spouse! In this weekend's Gospel, Jesus gets really serious about sin, and, therefore, he raises the bar on how far we should go to root out sin. If our marriages are the most important relationship on earth, it is worth taking a look at how we can root out sins against our spouse: • Switch to a flip phone or use accountability software to keep from looking at inappropriate websites, or even just to keep your phone from becoming a distraction. • Intentionally flood your relationship with affirmation to correct a habit of criticism. • Withdraw from activities that make too many demands on family time or Sunday Mass. • Set reminders for yourself to do the things that make your spouse feel loved to avoid taking him/her for granted. Reflecting On Sunday's Readings

In the May 2005 issue of Christianity Today magazine was an article about how Pope John Paul II assisted the cooperative evangelization efforts of a Polish Catholic youth ministry named Oasis, and Campus Crusade for Christ which is a Protestant evangelical organization. The article reveals several ways in which the then Cardinal and later Pope extended arms of friendship and grace to several, clearly evangelical, Protestants in a desire to work together to bring Christ to Catholics in Poland and Italy. Two things are interesting about the article. One is the undertone of amazement that a Catholic would assist evangelicals. The other is the skepticism that he could clearly be ranked as an evangelical: "Was Pope John Paul II an evangelical? In the current usage and meaning of the word, many would say of course not. But many American evangelicals saw in Wojtyla a man devoted to a biblical faith in Christ and committed to proclaiming the gospel to an increasingly lost secular world. He shared the core values of American evangelicalism: Christocentrism, Biblicism, evangelism, and anti-secularism."¹ Dah!, as the kids would say. If it looks like a duck, walks like a duck, and quacks like a duck — it's a duck. I know of no other man who could more honestly be declared evangelical than our beloved Holy Father, Saint Pope John Paul II. His behavior in advancing the cause of Christ by encouraging Catholics and evangelicals to work together is consistent with Christ, consistent with his life and values, and consistent with the Church's teachings. "The Council has stated: 'Catholics must joyfully acknowledge and esteem the truly Christian endowments from our common heritage which are to be found among our separated brothers and sisters. It is right and salutary to recognize the riches of Christ and virtuous works in the lives of others who are bearing witness to Christ, sometimes even to the shedding of their blood. For God is always wonderful in his works and worthy of admiration,"² . Pope John Paul II, Popes Benedict XVI, and Francis I, along with their predecessors John XXIII, and Paul VI, have brought a new depth of understanding and spirituality to how we should relate to non-Catholic Christians. In this respect they have provided a wonderful service to the cause of Christ, not only within Catholicism but throughout Christendom. They have fully captured the heart of Jesus' mission and methodology for reaching the world: namely, that Christians' unity and love for one another should be a light and beacon of hope to a dark and divided world. (John 13:34,35) We see this attitude reflected in both this week's First Reading and the Gospel Reading. We wonder how Christendom could have missed and ignored for so long; Jesus' desire for unity and love among his followers, it is beyond comprehension. That is, it is beyond our comprehension until we reflect on our own feelings of rivalry, competition and party spirit toward other Christian groups, parishes, and denominations. In our human understanding, to be for something, necessarily means to be against some other thing. This should not be so. In Jesus' heart and mind, as we see in the Gospel Reading, to be for something means to be for it in whatever various forms it appears. Consequently, Jesus rejects his disciples call for partisanship, and does not forbid others who willingly bear his name, from doing so just because they were not part of his specific band of disciples. Jesus' concern is not partisanship but the spread of the Good News to a corrupt and hopeless world. Today the world is increasing in moral decay and hopelessness. To sit around arguing about who is the greatest, and expending our energies to put down those who do not totally agree with us in every detail, while ignoring their unity with us regarding Jesus' divinity, salvation, and mission, is to lose sight of both reality, and Jesus' objective. Today more than ever we must unite to know, honor, and glorify the Savior, to bring his saving truth to a lost world. "In the eyes of the world, cooperation among Christians becomes a form of common Christian witness and a means of evangelization which benefits all involved."³ Only those who choose to remain out of the spiritual battle for the hearts of the world can enjoy the luxury of expending their energies on intra-Christian squabbling. 1 Christianity Today article: "The Pope We Never Knew," by David Scott. 2 Ut Unum Sint, by Pope John Paul II, (47). 3 Ut Unum Sint, by Pope John Paul II, (40).
