SHOULD PUBLIC OFFICIALS BE BARRED FROM COMMUNION FOR ADVOCATING POLICIES WHICH PROMOTE ABORTION?

In impassioned debate Thursday, U.S. Catholic bishops clashed over how to address concerns about Catholic politicians who continue to receive Communion despite supporting abortion rights. Some bishops said a strong rebuke of such politicians is needed because of recent actions protecting and expanding abortion access. Others warned that such action would portray the bishops as a partisan force during a time of bitter political divisions across the country.

The issue is by far the most contentious agenda item at the national meeting of the U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops, which is being held virtually. It will conclude Friday soon after an announcement of how the bishops cast their secret ballots on the Communion dispute. If a majority of bishops approve, the USCCB's doctrine committee will draft a statement on the meaning of Communion in the life of the church that would be submitted for a vote at a future meeting, probably an in-person gathering in November. One section of the document is expected to include a specific admonition to Catholic politicians and other public figures who disobey church teaching on abortion and other core doctrinal issues.

Bishop Donald Hying of Madison, Wisconsin, said he speaks with many people who are confused by Catholic leaders who advance "the most radical pro-abortion agenda in history," and action from the bishops' conference is needed. "They're looking for direction," Hying said.

Bishop Robert McElroy of San Diego countered that the USCCB would suffer "destructive consequences" from a document targeting Catholic politicians. "It would be impossible to prevent the weaponization of the Eucharist," McElroy said. "We will invite all of the political animosities that divide our nation into the heart of the Eucharistic sacrament." President Biden who attends Mass regularly, says he personally opposes abortion but doesn't think he should impose that position on Americans who feel otherwise. He's taken several executive actions during his presidency that were hailed by abortion-rights advocates.

The chairman of the USCCB doctrine committee, Bishop Kevin Rhoades of Fort Wayne-South Bend, Indiana, said no decisions have been made on the final contents of the proposed document. He said bishops who are not on the committee would have chances to offer input, and the final draft would be subject to amendments before it is put up to a vote.

Positive Communication Strategies in Moving a Loved One Towards Change

The Norman Chapter of Parents Helping Parents will meet in its ONLINE format on Thursday, June 24 at 7:00 PM Central Time.

When communication breaks down in the face of fear and stress, parents who have a loved one struggling with substances can go to a place of isolation or give up on them. Good communication is crucial in fostering the connection that creates space for change where all can feel understood and heard. Jack Sykstus, Marriage & Family Therapist, MS will share techniques for increasing motivation to change through improved communication within the family system. Don't miss this important meeting.

Those interested in joining this (and future) online Parents Helping Parents meetings can participate by providing their e-mail addresses. A Zoom link will then be e-mailed before each meeting. To receive these links, please complete this brief form-

Parents Helping Parents is a network of parents/grandparents/caregivers concerned about substance use disorder in their children (both adolescents and adults). The group offers hope through shared experience, resources, and education. They promote prevention and intervention, collaborative efforts and increased access to information/services, and provide support.

For more information, call 405-278-1221 or go to the website: www.ParentsHelpingParents.info.

We are looking for some intercessory prayer warriors who will set aside a little time during the week to pray for parishioners (or close members of their families) who are seriously if not critically ill and need help from God to get over this particularly rough patch in their lives.

WE ARE CLOSING THE GAP

Thanks so much to our good and faithful stewards who are coming through to close the gap between the last two fiscal years. With a little more than a month remaining in our fiscal year which began on July 1, 2020 and ends on June 30, 2021 we can still reach our goal. Now that the Archbishop has reinstated the Sunday Mass obligation, our attendance and contributions should continue to increase. We also received a request from the Archdiocese this past week to remind us that we are more than 25% below our ACA goal. We have contributed $54K and our goal is more than $70K. If you have the means to do so, closing this gap would also be greatly appreciated.
