Breaking Bread Homeless Ministries News From The Streets...

Hey! What Are You Doing?

By Mary Martha Primerano

My world seems filled with homeless men. Seriously! God what are you doing to me? On any given day I will run into at least three, and that is within a two block radius. My challenge: what am I going to do about it? "Owe no man anything, but to love one another" Romans 13:8. But how Lord? His response - tell them I love them, show them, be my hands and feet. Today was payday, and I was feeling pretty good. During lunch I planned to head to some specialty market downtown to pick up something for dinner. As I made my way back to work, I caught a glimpse of a man digging through the trash... yes indeed - it was broad daylight, and it didn't seem to faze him at all. I yelled from across the street. "Hey! What are you doing?" He looked up at me somewhat confused, or shocked I guess. I then yelled again "Here this is for you!", and gently laid some chili and utensils on a trash can container, and quickly turned to walk away. He raced to retrieve it and immediately began to eat. He seemed famished. I was so glad to be a part of God's plan for today, to be able to reach out to the gentleman and love him. I'm sure I will run into him again soon. We all are a part of God's kingdom for a reason. For now, the scripture that comes to mind is Mark 8:36, "For what shall it profit a man, if he gains the whole world, and lose his own soul?"

Cry Out with JOY TO THE LORD!

"SEÑOR, TEN COMPASION DE NOSOTROS"

LO QUE HAS ACUMULADO, ¿DE QUIÉN SERÁ?

Lucas 12,13-21. El Sentido de la Vida.- Hay preguntas que nosotros las escribimos en nuestro propio lenguaje pero que ciertamente no han empezado a existir cuando nosotros las hemos empezado a decir. El libro del Eclesiastés, por ejemplo, contiene expresiones como las que hemos oído hoy, que tienen un sabor marcadamente "existencialista," si queremos usar esa expresión. De fondo, el tema permanente es que la vida requiere renuncias, esfuerzos, padecimientos, y por ello es inevitable preguntarse, en el lenguaje que sea, con más o menos filosofía, si eso, si todo eso, merece la pena. La respuesta de la primera lectura es que no; la respuesta del evangelio de hoy es que se engañan los que piensan que una gran abundancia es compensación justa a un largo esfuerzo. Nosotros, lo mismo que los hombres del siglo I o del siglo XIII, preguntamos a nuestra propia manera por el sentido de la vida. No siempre de un modo explícito, es decir, como un tema planteado y abordado; pero sí nos lo preguntamos.

El joven que anda aburrido a pesar de que parece tenerlo todo y vivir en un país próspero, la madre de familia que un día se ve hastiada de su rutina y ve con pavor que la amargura se le entra en el alma, el profesor que no sabe si ha valido la pena su vida de esfuerzos y desvelos, el abuelo que se queda mirando el horizonte, esperando la visita que nunca llega...

Todos ellos, en su propio modo, están preguntándose si ha valido la pena lo que han sufrido y soñado. Es una pregunta que sencillamente no podemos esquivar; para huir de ella tendríamos que huir de nosotros mismos.

La Falsa Solución: Abundancia.- Hay gente que parece no tener que preguntarse más. Son los que la están pasando bien. Están bien provistos y se sienten a salvo, resguardados por sus bienes, su poder, sus ideas brillantes y su lenguaje hábil.

La respuesta a la gran pregunta es fácil para ellos: "la vida es para gozarla"; "el mundo es de los avispaditos." Obrar con desenvoltura porque no tienen que pensar en restricciones; y sin embargo, están restringidos al presente y no se dan cuenta que las circunstancias del día de hoy no son eternas. Por eso Jesús califica de "necedad" la actitud de los que se fían de sus muchos bienes, como ese rico del evangelio. Uno puede eludir la pregunta por el sentido de la vida encerrándose en la prisión del presente y el hoy, pero hasta esa prisión llega la luz de otra pregunta, la que oímos en el texto: "¿Para quién serán todos tus bienes?" En el fondo esa pregunta contiene una afirmación: si alguien se va a hacer rico con tus riquezas, ¿no es verdad que estás trabajando para él? Nuestra condición de seres temporales y finitos nos obliga a buscar en otra dirección. La solución no es encadenarse al aquí y el ahora ni tampoco dedicarnos a cuidar como perros los bienes que pasan, convirtiéndonos más en sus siervos que en sus señores. La temporalidad y la finitud se vencen buscando lo que es permanente e infinito, es decir, buscando en nosotros lo más duradero y propio (aquí llamado, el alma) y sobre todo buscando a Dios, único y real fundamento de cuanto existe y de nosotros mismos.

Fr. Nelson Medina F., O.P

VIVIR LA LITURGIA - INSPIRACIÓN DE LA SEMANA

(LIVE THE LITURGY)

Jesús nos advierte que en cualquier momento podemos ser llamados ante Dios para enfrentar el juicio.

Cuando lo seamos, nuestra vida no se medirá en dólares o logros, sino en lo que le importa a Dios. ¿Qué tenemos que mostrar por el tiempo que pasamos en la Tierra?
