what we have been working on

Hello everyone,

This week students started a new Unit of the human body, in CKLA. They will also be creating their own booklets about the body and writing sentences about what they have learned. In Social studies the students have been studying maps, what different types of maps look like and why we need maps. In math the students finished chapter 1 of solving story problems using addition and subtraction. IN religion they have discussed what a guardian angel is and drew what they think their guardian angel looks like.
