dear Padre

If, for economic reasons, a couple wants to purchase a home together before they marry, is it permissible for them to live together?

In the recent past, it would have been rare to find an unmarried man and woman living together as roommates. Today, however, it's fairly common. Sometimes these arrangements are dictated by finances—a homeowner or renter finds he or she can't afford to live alone so the person seeks a roommate. Other times it's a result of friendship. In many ways this is a positive development—it shows we've learned to have intimate friendships that don't involve sex.

There's nothing immoral about inhabiting the same home. However, when a joint real-estate venture is more than a business deal and involves eventual marriage, there are hazards. It's important for the couple to be very clear about what they're doing. Buying a home is a huge commitment. They should remember that real estate is one commitment, marriage is another, and they aren't interchangeable. It would be easy for one partner to insist on the house for economic reasons when the joint purchase is really an attempt to seal the marriage deal in advance.

Buying a house together could create marriage pressures, making it difficult to back out due to a change of heart. Such arrangements are full of possibilities for misunderstanding, disappointment, and anger. Unless it's clear that joint home ownership is— until marriage—just a business deal (and clear legal contracts are drawn up), it's not advisable. — Sundaybulletin@Liguori.org

Family Movie Night: Join us on Friday, September 21st at 6:00 pm when we gather to watch the movie "Paul, Apostle of Christ." Risking his life, Luke ventures to Rome to visit Paul-who's bound in chains and held captive in Nero's darkest and bleakest prison cell. Haunted by the shadows of his past misdeeds, Paul wonders if he's been forgotten as he awaits his grisly execution. Before Paul's death, Luke resolves to write another book that details the birth of what will come to be know as the church. Their faith challenged an empire...where sin abounds, grace abounds more! Pull up a chair, enjoy some popcorn and a drink on us, bring the family out for an evening of together time.

PRAYER AND SPIRITUALITY

GOSPEL MEDITATION

September 16, 2018 24th Sunday in Ordinary Time

We know the signs of defeat: slumped shoulders, downcast eyes, a chastened demeanor. For those of us sincerely trying to follow Jesus, defeat is inevitable. We commit to spending more time with our kids, but that one project still looms. We resolve to be a good person, but our selfishness strikes again. It can be easy to get discouraged over our moral failures. Today's Gospel is a small, intriguing look at this process in the life of St. Peter.

First, Jesus' questions get the Apostles thinking about his true identity. This results in a confession of faith from Peter: "You are the Christ." Eager faith characterizes Peter's relationship with Jesus. First to follow, first to leap out of the boat, and, we know, first to deny. It's the latter tendency that manifests itself later in the Gospel. When Jesus predicts the Passion, "Peter took him aside and began to rebuke him." Jesus' rebuke in turn is stinging. While Peter's caution to Jesus is in private, Jesus intentionally turns back to the others as he declares, "Get behind me, Satan. You are thinking not as God does, but as human beings do."

Like Peter, we rarely get it right all the time. Peter understood that Jesus was the Messiah, but he had a false concept of what that Messiah would accomplish. Jesus wants to make sure the rest of the disciples don't follow down the wrong road. The Christian life is a difficult one, as Jesus later tells the crowds. "Whoever wishes to come after me must deny himself." Yet the mercy of God is abundant. If we renew our trust and our efforts after a fall, every defeat is transformed into redemptive grace. "Whoever loses his life for my sake? will save it."

TWENTY-FOURTH SUNDAY IN ORDINARY TIME The answer this time

We evolve. This is one of the most grateful things about existence, that we're not required to remain stuck in our stuff. We grow, learn, and adapt through the years. Our relationship with the Holy One evolves too. So, when Jesus asks us once more—Who do you say that I am?—our reply may well be different this time. Is Jesus still the God someone gave us long ago? Has Jesus become more real and necessary: as a friend, brother, healer, teacher, fellow sufferer, or champion? Is Jesus Lord of our lives, judge, irritant, role model, or inspiration?

TODAY'S READINGS: Isaiah 50:5-9a; James 2:14-18; Mark 8:27-35 (131). "And Jesus asked them, 'But who do you say that I am?'"

MEMORIĂĹ OF ROBERT BELLARMINE, BISHOP, DOCTOR OF THE CHURCH

Make care for the poor a cardinal virtue

The Italian Jesuit Robert Bellarmine (d. 1621) is rightly remembered for his brilliance—he was made a cardinal by Pope Clement VIII on the grounds that "he had not his equal for learning." But while Bellarmine wore the red hat and had an apartment in the Vatican, he refused to live the high life. He maintained his austere disciplines, spending the bare minimum on his own needs and eating only the food available to the poor. It is said that he even used the tapestries he found in his Vatican apartment to clothe poor people, remarking, "The walls won't catch cold." Pray that all the leaders of the church share Bellarmine's vision of what it means to be a servant of God.

TODAY'S READINGS: 1 Corinthians 11:17-26, 33; Luke 7:1-10 (443). "I did not consider myself worthy to come to you, but say the word and let my servant be healed."

What you do for the least helps the most

One of Jesus' greatest gifts was his ability to comfort people who were suffering. He did that by performing miracles, of course, but also by simply accepting each person he encountered. Jesus' method was simple, but 2,000 years later it is apparent that we still have much to learn about how to treat the most fragile and vulnerable among us. The French geophysicist Xavier Le Pichon, in a profoundly personal and moving essay titled "Ecce Homo" ("Behold Humanity"), writes that when people turn toward the suffering ones in their midst, the entire community is transformed. Take some time today to read Le Pichon's essay and hear his extraordinary life story at .org. You won't be sorry.

TODAY'S READINGS: 1 Corinthians 12:12-14, 27-31a; Luke 7:11-17 (444). "When the Lord saw her, he was moved with pity for her and said to her, 'Do not weep."

MEMORIAL OF JANUARIUS, BISHOP, MARTYR They're there when you need them

The bishop Saint Januarius, who died near the beginning of the fourth century, is known primarily for the San Gennaro festival named after him and for a famous phenomenon: the liquefying of a vial said to be his blood that has been going on several times a year in Naples, Italy for centuries. Apparently, he was an inspiring presence even before that. When Saint Paulinus of Nola was dying in 431, he called out to Saints Januarius and Martin of Tours, "who a little while ago were speaking to me and promising me that soon I would join them," a biography says. Saints are always available. Pray to them for help and let them serve as examples of love and service in your life.

TODAY'S READINGS: 1 Corinthians 12:31—13:13; Luke 7:31-35 (445). "Strive eagerly for the greatest spiritual gifts."

Thursday, Sep 20, 2018

MEMORIAL OF ANDREW KIM TAE-GON, PRIEST, PAUL CHONG HA-SANG, AND COMPANIONS, MARTYRS What they did for love

"Love makes the whole difference between an execution and martyrdom," Evelyn Underhill once said. As one of Christianity's renowned commentators on mysticism, she should know. The saints we call mystics are hailed for their utmost trust in God's love, their sheer abandonment to its power. But martyrs take it one step further—abandonment to even the point of death. Such devotion is "not an affair of red cassocks and authorized hymnbooks," Underhill wrote, "but a burning and consuming fire." As we remember today nearly 10,000 Korean martyrs, most of them laypeople, who were tortured and killed for their love of Christ, whose blood built the church in Korea, reflect on what real love looks like and what helps it grow.

TODAY'S READINGS: 1 Corinthians 15:1-11; Luke 7:36-50 (446). "You did not anoint my head with oil, but she anointed my feet with ointment."

FEAST OF MATTHEW, APOSTLE, EVANGELIST I'm the tax man

Before Matthew was an apostle, he was a tax collector. Tax collectors as a rule are not the most popular people on the block, but they were despised in Roman-occupied Jewish lands, where they did the dirty work of collecting the Empire's taxes. Jesus' desire to mingle with such people scandalized the religious authorities, but Jesus was more interested in being with "tax collectors and sinners" than with the righteous, who felt they had nothing to learn from Jesus and no need to reform their lives. If we want Jesus to feel comfortable in our homes and hearts, it is good for us to guard against righteousness, the temptation to elevate ourselves by judging others.

TODAY'S READINGS: Ephesians 4:1-7, 11-13; Matthew 9:9-13 (643). "Why does your teacher eat with tax collectors and sinners?"

MEMORIAL OF THE BLESSED VIRGIN MARY Run like a girl

The spiritual life is often described in sporting terms: Fight the good fight, run the race, win the crown. These come from an ancient Greek culture immersed in the excitement of athletic games and competition. But there are other ways to triumph, spiritually speaking. Mary of Nazareth employed the gospel paradox of the weak surpassing the strong through utter reliance on God's promises. Her "race" involved domestic life, birth and death, security and danger and challenge. Competition isn't the only way to win.

TODAY'S READINGS: 1 Corinthians 15:35-37, 42-49; Luke 8:4 -15 (448). "Knowledge of the mysteries of the kingdom of God has been granted to you."
