LAFAYETTE — For three decades, Sister Jane Anthrop, OSF, has ministered to the sick, elderly and homebound of St. Boniface Parish here.

Every weekday, she visits homes and hospitals, with weekend calls as well, and she mails encouraging cards throughout the year.

Sixty-two years after joining the Sisters of St. Francis of Perpetual Adoration in Mishawaka, Ind., the 80-year-old said she is "still very joyful and peaceful in my service of the Church and my Franciscan community. I love my vocation."

A native of Lafayette, Sister Jane grew up in a family of 12 children. She has been happy to be in her hometown for the majority of her ministry. A teacher for 30 years, she is proud "to have taught children how dearly God loves each of us."

In 1980, Sister Jane was asked to study pastoral care at Loyola University in Chicago.

"My provincial said I was a good teacher, but we were in need of a sister to work with the elderly and the sick and to visit hospitals," she said. "She said I had the talent and the personality

Four Girl Scouts were recognized for earning the "Mary, First Disciple" Award. This year's recipients were: Meghan Day, Colleen Ginnan and Taryn Ginnan, of Our Lady of Grace Parish, Noblesville; and Brianna Baehl, of St. John Vianney Parish, Fishers.

Adult awards

The Father James McKeown Award is unique to the Lafayette diocese. It is named after a deceased priest who served as director of Scouting for the diocese.

Recipients of the award must be 18 years old or older and actively involved for at least two years in Catholic Scouting.

This year's recipients included:

- Bruce Baldwin, of St. Elizabeth Ann Seton Parish, Carmel. He is an assistant Scoutmaster who encourages his Scouts to earn their religious awards and to participate in Scout Sunday. He is active on the board of review and also helps coordinate "Scouting for Food" collections, teaching Scouts more about concern for those in need. In his parish, Baldwin helps with service projects and participates in CRHP retreats.

- Randell Bruns, of St. Maria Goretti Parish, Westfield. An Eagle Scout, he is a troop committee member and a role model for his son's Scout troop. He counsels boys working on their Ad Altare Dei Award and also has worked with youth on their Light of Christ and Parvuli Dei awards in the past. Bruns is a den leader for his younger son's Cub Pack. In his parish, he helps at Shepherd's Gate Food Pantry and Destination Jesus retreats. He also is a member of CRHP, the fourth-degree Knights of Columbus and the DCCS.

- Timothy Elshire, of St. Elizabeth Ann Seton Parish, Carmel. The father of nine, he was Cubmaster for his younger sons' pack. They now have crossed over into Boy Scouts and he is a troop committee member. He also encourages and supports his younger daughters in their Girl Scout programs. Elshire is active in his parish's youth programs, attends summer camps with the troop and is a fourth-degree Knight.

- Hans Heintzelman, of St. Mary Parish, Muncie. He is a Cubmaster who encourages his Scouts to earn the Light of Christ and Parvuli Dei awards. He also works with them on one of the saint patches each year to help them grow in their faith. An avid outdoorsman, Heintzelman takes his Cub Scouts on outdoor adventures, where they learn more about the wonders of God. On Scout Sunday, he plays his hand drums with the all-Scout choir at his parish.

- Steven Sproull, of St. Elizabeth Ann Seton Parish, Carmel. He serves on the

Steven Sproull

Boy Scout Troop Committee, as well as being the outings coordinator and a patrol advisor. Sproull encourages Scouts to earn their religious awards, serves on boards of review and helps with Scout Sunday. This summer, he will accompany the troop for a high-adventure trip to Philmont Scout Ranch. His older son will serve as crew leader for the trip. Sproull also is a religious education teacher at his parish, participates in service projects and is a soccer coach in the community.

The Bronze Pelican Award is presented to men and women who have contributed to the success of Catholic Scouting for a minimum of five years, through fostering Catholic identity in Boy Scouting, promoting religious recognition programs and providing spiritual experiences for Boy Scouts.

This year's recipient is Mary Avila, of St. Mary Parish in Muncie. She has been involved with Cubs, Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts and has promoted and supported the Scouts in earning their religious awards. She currently is the charter organization representative and committee chair for both the Cub Pack and the Boy Scout Troop. For Scout Sunday, she worked with her parish music director to organize a Scout youth choir along with Scout instrumentalists. Scouts also served in other roles at Mass. Avila is a past recipient of the Father James McKeown Award. In her parish, she serves on the Finance Committee.

The St. George Award is the highest national Catholic adult award in Boy Scouting. Recipients must be 18 years old or older and have given a minimum of 10 years of service to Catholic Scouting.

This can be awarded to men or women, in Catholic or non-Catholic troops, who have made a significant contribution to Catholic relationships and is intended to recognize recipients' outstanding contributions to the spiritual development of Catholic youth in the program of Boy Scouts of America.

This year's recipients are Thomas Bleisch, of Our Lady of Grace Parish, Noblesville, and Sara Gormley, of St. Elizabeth Ann Seton Parish, Carmel.

Bleisch is a longtime Scouter who has served as a Cubmaster, assistant Scoutmaster and Scoutmaster. He encourages all Scouts to grow in their faith, by working on religious awards and their relationship with God. His troop ends all campouts with an interfaith service. He also is active in his parish's youth programs and in his community.

Even though her children are all grown, Gormley remains very involved in Boy Scouting. She serves as committee chair for both the Boy Scout Troop and the Venture Crew. She supports the Scouts working on their religious awards, participates on boards of review and helps Scouts work on their relationship with God. In 2012, she organized a Scout development retreat for adult Scouters that was well attended. She is a past recipient of the Bronze Pelican Award.

for that. I didn't believe it at that time, but I have been doing this work since and I love it.

"I first started in ministry to cancer patients at Loyola Hospital and (the late) Cardinal Joseph Bernardin used to come visit patients twice a month," Sister Jane said. "When he was diagnosed with pancreatic cancer himself, my heart was with him and I was able to visit him. He was a wonderful man — he encouraged me to keep going in my ministry."

She feels "when praying with and for older adults, you share God's healing power and love," she said. "You become a channel of divine compassion, helping the other person to be open to Jesus' will. I feel that those who minister to the sick, homebound and poor or anyone in need become the hands of God — gentle, compassionate and caring."

Mary Mills, 97, is a longtime member of St. Boniface who has had regular visits from Sister Jane for the last 12 years.

"I love to have visitors, but Sister Jane is special," Mills said. "She brings me Communion and we know so many of the same people. I am very fortunate to have her in my life."

"I see Sister Jane as an angel of mercy to many people in our community," said Father Tim Alkire, pastor of St. Boniface. "She's so humble — she goes about her work visiting the sick and shut-ins and I doubt many people realize all she does. The people she visits love her because of her extreme charity to them. They call her when they're lonely or afraid, and they ask her to send a priest."

"I've often thought that stories of her ministry should be compiled to explain how one person can be a missionary of charity wherever God sends them," he said.

Years ago, Father Alkire heard that nurses at St. Elizabeth Hospital told Sister Jane about a family in great need. The mother was dying of cancer, and there were no Christmas gifts for the children. With little money, the family lived in a sparsely furnished house. Sister Jane organized the nurses to collect Christmas gifts.

"She visited me in her station wagon — I call it the Mercy Wagon — and asked for my help," Father Alkire said. "Sister Jane drove us to a secondhand store and bought beds, tables, chairs, rugs and the like. You can't imagine the family's surprise, gratitude and tears."

"Sister Jane continued to visit them — even though she couldn't speak their language," he said. "And all these years later, they still remember her. The mother died fortified with the sacraments, and one of her daughters, now married with children of her own, often expresses her gratitude."

"God uses Sister Jane," Father Alkire said. "Once in a store, a woman recognized Sister Jane as a teacher from St. Lawrence School decades earlier. The woman got very emotional, saying that her husband needed the sacrament of the sick and she didn't know how to arrange it. Sister Jane opened the door. She picked me up in the Mercy Wagon and the man received everything the Church could give him — including the love of Sister Jane, who renewed her relationship with a family from years before."

He also recalled a visit to homebound parishioner Louise McKay.

"Mrs. McKay opened the door and I said I was there to visit. Looking past me with some disappointment, she said, 'Oh ... Where's Sister Jane?' It was a wonderful moment I'll never forget. I remind Louise's son about it to this day," he said.

Another day, Father Alkire accompanied Sister Jane on several visits. One took longer than they had anticipated, and it was growing late. Sister Jane said they still needed to visit one more parishioner.

"When we pulled into his driveway, the man was being put in an ambulance," Father Alkire said. "I climbed in, anointed him and off he went to the hospital. He died just about an hour later, and I thanked God for Sister's perseverance and dedication.

"God has surely used this loving servant for our community in Lafayette," he said. "Sister Jane ministers to people of all faiths and shares Jesus' mercy with them. She's talked to me about her vocation, the joys and struggles of her religious life and the love she has for Jesus. I'll never forget her saying to me, 'Life's tough! We have to bear with one another. We have to love one another. Nothing we do means anything without the love of Jesus shining through us.'"

"I feel that those who minister to the sick, homebound and poor or anyone in need become the hands of God ..."

"Almost every morning at 6:30 Mass, Sister Jane is the lector. It's very touching to see her devotion as she enters the sanctuary," Father Alkire said. "She is also great fun and when novices visit from the motherhouse in Mishawaka, she makes sure they get some frozen yogurt. She likes to play cards, but I should warn people to keep a good eye on her."

"Sister Jane is like a local Mother Teresa of Calcutta," Father Alkire said. "She inspires me."

"Sister Jane is instrumental in God's plan for everybody in their life," said Sister Lenore Schwartz, OSF, principal of St. Boniface School. "As people get close to the end of life, she has presented the opportunity to make peace with God, come back to the Church and make sure a priest is there to receive sacraments.

"It's a really beautiful thing," she said. "She loves working with people and they really enjoy her visiting. Children also love Sister Jane — they always try to get hugs from her."

"Sister Jane is such a treasure for our parish. Our homebound people would be lost without her," said Marcia Gretencord, St. Boniface office manager. "She is so faithful in visiting them and offering them comfort and the Eucharist. She even goes out and buys groceries, if necessary, for a parishioner who has had surgery."

"She has a wonderful sense of humor and is always game for anything," she said. "At our annual parish GermanFest, she will polka with Father Tim."

Sister Jane said that our vocations call "for a life of sacrifices. I feel this is my way of doing God's will. I continually remind my sick and elderly that heaven must be a beautiful home. I have been with approximately 200 people as they lay on their deathbed. I visited many older people who had left the Church — and they came back."

"My ministry has brought me to thank God and give him praise and glory for everything he has sent me," she said. "Life hasn't been a bed of roses, but I have learned to develop an attitude of thankfulness. I had cancer myself, but here I am. I am grateful for what God has given me: my vocation, my community, my family, friends and my health."

Father Goodrum celebrates 60 years of priestly life

By Caroline B. Mooney
The Catholic Moment

MONTICELLO — Father James R. Goodrum, 86, recently celebrated 60 years of priestly service to the Diocese of Lafayette-in-Indiana. He has known all the bishops of the diocese and ministered through many changes in the Church.

"I have enjoyed my priesthood because I've been able to help people," he said. "Sometimes you don't realize the effect you have had on others. I remember when I brought a man back to the Church and he said, 'You treat me just like Jesus would.' That really touched my heart. Priesthood is a very rewarding life."

More than 200 people attended a recent jubilee Mass and reception in honor of "Father Goody," as he is known to many, at Our Lady of the Lakes Parish, Monticello, where he served as pastor for 25 years. He has remained in Monticello since his retirement 10 years ago.

"It's wonderful having Father Goodrum in town," said Father David Rasner, pastor of Our Lady of the Lakes. "I always enjoy the times we can get together. I've known him for more than 30 years. As a young priest, Msgr. (Fred) Potthoff and I would come here to have dinner with him and Msgr. (Maurice) Foley."

"In subsequent years, I saw him when he was pastor here and I would visit my family's lake cottage," he said. "Now I enjoy being here as pastor and having him as a friend in Monticello."

"Father Goodrum is the epitome of what a priest should be and has lived his entire life with devotion to his faith and genuine concern for everyone," said Kim Bunting, president of the

Father James R. Goodrum in his home chapel in Monticello (Photos by Caroline B. Mooney)

Altar and Rosary Sodality of Our Lady of the Lakes, which takes the beloved priest meals each week. "He is a people person. He can talk about any subject and make a stranger feel welcome and comfortable when he meets them."

"He tells wonderful stories from years ago and has you laughing in just a moment," she said. "When he was our pastor, he greeted my challenged son after each Mass with a warm smile and handshake. He made my son feel connected to our faith and that a priest was his friend and not someone to just be admired from a distance."

"Father Goodrum has enriched lives through his homilies, as a friend to laugh and visit with, as a confessor, and as a friend to help parishioners emotionally. It was known that you could call him anytime regarding anything," Bunting said. "He truly is an outstanding humane priest and I feel blessed that I can be part of his life."

Born July 27, 1930, to Francis G. and Emma (Campbell) Goodrum, in Akron, Ohio, Father Goodrum's family lived in Logansport and Louisville, Ky., when he was young. He attended the old St. Joseph Church and St. Joseph School in Logansport.

His father died when he was 11, and Father Goodrum's mother supported her two sons with a restaurant in Louisville.

He attended Bishop Flaget High School in Louisville, and went on to Our Lady of the Lake Seminary, in Wawasee, Ind., and Saint Meinrad Seminary, in St. Meinrad, Ind.

"I always thought about being a priest," Father Goodrum said. "There wasn't one big moment, but a nun in eighth grade really planted the seed."

He was in the first group of priests to be ordained by Bishop (later Cardinal) John J. Carberry on May 25, 1957, at the Cathedral of St. Mary of the Immaculate Conception, Lafayette.

"I remember laying on the floor that day," Father Goodrum said. "While I was in the seminary, a deacon told me that when the time comes to be ordained, your mind will be made up — and it was."

"Bishop (John) Bennett (first bishop of the Lafayette diocese) was still alive in the hospital when I was ordained," he said. "So I went to the hospital after my ordination to ask if he would like to have my first blessing. He said, 'I would be honored.'"

The new priest's first assignment was as assistant pastor at St. Joan of Arc, Kokomo. On May 28, 1963, he was assigned as assistant pastor of Blessed Sacrament Parish, West Lafayette, while teaching at Central Catholic High School. On Jan. 24, 1964, he was named assistant pastor at St. Paul, Marion. He moved back to Logansport as assistant pastor of St. Vincent de Paul, Logansport, on June 2, 1964.

He served as the vice-defender of the bond on the diocesan marriage tribunal in 1965.

"I really enjoyed tribunal work," he said. "You are really helping people get back into the Church."

He received his first pastorate on June 17, 1970, at Sorrowful Mother, Wheatfield, with St. Cecilia Mission, DeMotte. He was named co-pastor of St. Mary, Anderson, on July 1, 1971, and on June 23, 1976, he became pastor of St. Bridget, Logansport.

"I went to St. Joseph's as a boy, was an assistant at St. Vincent's and came back as pastor at St. Bridget's," Father Goodrum said. That designates him as the only priest in the diocese to have ties to all three Logansport parishes which, in the 1980s, merged into the present All Saints Parish.

Retired Father Thomas Fox preceded Father Goodrum at St. Vincent's, and the two have been close friends for many years.

"Father Goodrum was always very, very good about taking care of the sick and the homebound. He took Communion to people and anointed them when needed," Father Fox said. "So now when parishioners in Monticello visit him and take him meals, many of them are returning the favors that Father Goodrum did for their parents and grandparents."

"If anyone ever needed him, they knew where to find him," he said. "Father Goodrum stayed close by the parish to be available to the people."

He was named pastor of Our Lady of the Lakes, Monticello, on July 1, 1982, where he stayed until his retirement in July 2007.

With failing eyesight, Father Goodrum still plays the organ from memory. He celebrates Mass every day in a home chapel with an altar that was handcrafted by a friend.

Rick Sweet grew up attending St. Vincent Parish, Logansport, when Father Goodrum was pastor.

"I was an altar boy, and I remember when there was a blizzard one Sunday," he said. "The whole town shut down, and I missed 6:30 a.m. Mass the next day. Well, Father Goodrum called me to say, 'Just because the town shut down doesn't mean the church closes down.' He wasn't upset, but just wanted to point out that nothing stops having Mass. I was there the next morning, having walked through the snow, to serve early Mass."

"I ended up in Monticello and it has been good to have him here," Sweet said. "When he came here, he helped to raise my kids. Now I attend daily Mass in his chapel. I fix him breakfast afterward and we chat. A lot of people think his word is next to godly, and it is. He is a very nice man."

Saints of the week

Josemaria Escriva
de Balaguer
(1902-1975)
Feast: June 26

Born in Barbastro, Spain, Josemaria was ordained a priest in 1925. In 1928, he founded Opus Dei, Latin for "God's work," as an apostolate in the ordinary circumstances of life, especially work, focusing on the universal call to holiness. It includes laypeople, priests and seminarians. Msgr. Escriva died in 1975 in Rome, where he had lived since 1946. In 1982, Opus Dei was given the status of a personal prelate, the equivalent of a nonterritorial diocese. Its founder was beatified in 1992 and canonized in 2002.
