Fourteenth Sunday in Ordinary Time

James Field

It's high summer now, school is out, the pace of work slows, and some people drift away. There are visitors in the churches every summer, and familiar faces are "among the missing." Some find the summer's call more appealing than the summons of the church bells. Many, however, would not dream of missing a Sunday, and so they make their way to Mass in unfamiliar places, watching the locals for clues as to when to sit or stand, where the Communion stations are. In answering the call, they keep the "sabbatical" rhythm of the Christian life: every seventh day, the Body of Christ assembles for worship.

For centuries, there was no obligation to Sunday Mass in the sense of a written law, but Christians have always yearned to be together on Sunday. In the city of Abitina, during a persecution by the Emperor Diocletian, a group of Christians were urged to stop worshipping together on Sundays. They responded, "Then take our lives, for without the Sunday we cannot live." By a curious coincidence, the appointed readings today center us on thoughts of peace. On our Independence Day, the experience of worship situates us in community, and evokes a commitment from us to be advocates of peace in all aspects of our society's life.

This year's conference is at Sacred Heart Major Seminary, 2701 Chicago Boulevard, Detroit, and we will carpool if that's wanted. Join women of faith from across the region for a powerful day of prayer, praise, sisterhood, and spiritual renewal. Let's come together to reflect, equip, rejoice, and be anchored in God. The keynote speaker is Dr. M. Shawn Copeland, Professor Emerita of Systematic Theology at Boston College and Theologian-in-Residence at Saint Katharine Drexel Parish in Boston. The theme is Are you anchored in God?.
